Italian Flood Claims 3,000

... LANDSLIDE FORCES WATER OVER DAM

Belluno, Italy (AP) — A catastrophic flood caused by a mammoth mountain landslide into a hydroelectric dam reservoir turned this once beautiful Alpine area into a vast mud-covered grave Thursday.

Estimates of the casualty toll ranged up to 3,000 dead.

Interior Undersecretary Giovanni Giraudo estimated that 2,300 people died when the gigantic wall of water crashed down from the Vaiont Dam reservoir into the Piave river valley.

U.S. Army authorities helping in the recovery operations reported estimates that there were 3,000 dead.

But it was clear that it could be days before the last grim toll of those still buried under the nightmarish mantle of rock, debris and mud would finally be known.

Thursday night, Giraudo told a news conference here at Belluno, 12 miles south of the dam, that 400 bodies had been recovered so far.

Corner Gone

The magnitude of the torrent led authorities to report during the night that the dam had collapsed. But by daylight it was seen that the giant dam had survived the onslaught of mud and water. An upper corner had been ripped away, apparently by the landslide.

In Washington, President Kennedy ordered the Defense Department to provide "any assistance required and desired" by the Italian government in connection with the disaster. Kennedy also cabled Italian President Antonio Segni to say that "all Americans join me in expressing heartfelt sympathy to all those who have suffered."

Giraudo said the most urgent problem now was fast recovery of bodies before decomposition could cause a major epidemic hazard. Army troops were ordered to find a site for a mass common grave.

Rescue

"We came here for rescue and assistance," said Giraudo, "but we found that the only thing we could do was carry out bodies."

The official said that the heavy rains of recent days had caused "some preoccupation about the condition of the mountain side" but he did not elaborate.

He explained that in the past three days engineers had been lowering the water level behind the 873-foot-high dam — the world's third highest — as part of normal precautions for the start of the rainy winter season.

In Rome the Italian magistracy and government opened separate investigations into the tragedy to determine if there had been any negligence.

Scientists suspected an earthquake loosed the avalanche that dropped like a rock from Mt. Toc into the deep, four-mile-long reservoir and cascaded millions of tons of water over the dam onto a sleeping countryside.

Flattened villages dotted the valleys of the Lower Vaiont and Upper Piave rivers below the dam, a reinforced concrete, 873-foot-tall structure that is the third highest dam in the world.

200 Yards

Witnesses said the water first splashed about 200 yards up the mountainside and swallowed two hamlets, then roared over the dam and down the valleys toward the Adriatic Sea, sweeping away whole villages, farms, roads and railway tracks.

Bodies of villagers and animals lay half buried in mud along the banks of the Piave. Dozens of bodies floated downstream on the 12-foot crest of the flood. Several were recovered as far as 36 miles downstream.

Natural Disaster Toll High

New York (AP) — When nature goes wild, man can only stand in awe of the death-dealing force of the life-sustaining elements of fire, earth, air and water.

Ten major natural disasters this year together have killed over 25,000 persons. Other rampages, with fewer fatalities, send this toll near 30,000, almost as many deaths as the United States suffered on the battlefields of Korea.

The destruction of property cannot be assessed.

One calamity alone — a cyclone and tidal wave in the Bay of Bengal May 26 — killed some 16,000 persons in Pakistan, nearly double the combined U.S. battle deaths of the Revolutionary, 1812, Mexican and Spanish-American wars.

The massive landslide into a dammed reservoir in Italy Wednesday midnight appeared to be the third worst natural catastrophe of 1963 in loss of life. Only the Pakistan disaster and Hurricane Flora, which has killed an estimated 3,500 in Haiti and Cuba, surpass it.

Two other calamities dealt massive loss of life — a volcano on Bali and an earthquake in Yugoslavia.

The eruption of Agung Volcano rained showers of stone and sent rivers of lava over Bali for more than a week last March, causing 1,478 deaths on the paradise island.

More than 1,000 persons died in the earthquake which leveled Skopje, Yugoslavia, Aug. 26, wiping out a city 20 centuries old.

Among nature's other more destructive rampages this year were earthquakes in Libya last February which killed 300 and injured 375 and in Kashmir Sept. 2, which killed 79 and injured 400; Typhoon Gloria which killed 172 on Formosa Sept. 11; a landslide in Korea June 24 which killed 116; and a flood in Iran May 19 which killed 60.

U.S., Russia Willing To Widen Accord

Washington (AP) — President Kennedy conferred with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko late Wednesday and the Russian said both sides had expressed willingness and readiness to broaden the area of possible East-West accord.

White House authorities said Kennedy raised the issue of Russian troops still in Cuba, but without any announced result.

These authorities described the two-hour discussion as a healthy exchange of views on a variety of issues.

Willing

Gromyko told reporters: "Both sides expressed willingness to broaden the field of questions on which understanding is possible."

Gromyko was silent on the Cuban question in his talk with newsmen, however. He declined even to say whether the issue had come up.

White House sources gave this account: Kennedy, as U.S. officials have regularly been doing in talks with the Russians, raised the subject of the continued presence of Soviet troops in Cuba. The United States wants them all to leave.

Response

What response Gromyko gave was not disclosed.

Kennedy and Gromyko also stated their respective governmental positions on the proposed East-West nonaggression pact, the Kennedy plan for a NATO seaborne Polaris force, Berlin, Laos and the banning of nuclear-armed satellites in outer space.

While they were talking, the Moscow radio broadcast a message from Soviet Premier Khrushchev calling for new East-West efforts to consolidate peace.

Khrushchev's message was addressed to Kennedy and British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan. It marked the coming into force of the limited nuclear test ban treaty barring all but underground explosions.

The Soviet premier said the treaty had brought a fresh breeze into the world atmosphere and shown that no matter how complicated are modern problems, or how great the difference between the social systems of states, "We can find mutually acceptable decision in the interests of all mankind, in the interests of maintaining peace, if we show the necessary desire."

Neither Gromyko nor the White House source would give any detail concerning the discussion on Berlin. Gromyko said only that the talks included questions "relating to European security."

No Plans

There are no plans for a further Kennedy-Gromyko get together. The Russian foreign minister was in Washington briefly on a side trip from the U.N. General Assembly fall session.

The treaty to banish all except underground atomic tests, now signed by 107 nations around the world, formally came into force after representatives of the three original signers — the United States, Britain and Russia — deposited instruments of ratification at their capitals.

In the ceremony at the State Department in Washington, Rusk, British Ambassador David Ormsby Gore and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin voiced hope for additional moves toward peace.

House Nixes Moon Trip With Reds, Clears $5.1 Billion For Space

Washington (UPI) — The House voted Thursday against traveling to the moon with Russia and then approved a slimmed-down $5.1 billion space budget despite warnings the cut in funds could delay an American-only lunar shot by two years.

Before passing a $13 billion catch-all appropriations bill that included money for the space agency, the House beat back two attempts to further trim the space budget. No effort at all was made to increase it.

It acted as four U.S. astronauts looked on from the gallery.

Surprise

On a non-record vote that apparently caught administration forces by surprise, members approved 125 to 110 a proposal to bar use of space funds for any joint moon venture with Russia—a project recently suggested by President Kennedy.

The bill as it came to the floor provided $600 million less for space than Kennedy originally asked. Members refused first to cut this by another $700 million, and then, just before the bill was passed and sent to the Senate, to trim it by $200 million.

They thus affirmed a somewhat-curtailed space fund recommended by the House Appropriations Committee despite warnings by top space officials that anything short of $5.35 billion would mean a delay of two years—and final added costs of up to $3 billion — in landing an American astronaut on the moon.

Seek More

The roll call vote against the $200 million cut was 192 to 145. Then the bill was passed in another roll call and sent to the Senate, where administration forces no doubt will try to win restoration of some of the money.

The amendment against joint moon ventures with Russia was sponsored by Rep.

Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., who said it would be folly to share in a moon project with Russia.

The House action is subject to Senate approval.

177 Demos

On the final motion to trim the bill by $200 million, 177 Democrats joined 15 Republicans in voting against it. For the proposal were 126 Republicans and 19 Democrats.

In his U.N. speech on Sept. 20, Kennedy told the General Assembly: "... there is room for new cooperation for further joint efforts in the regulation and exploration of space. I include among these possibilities a joint expedition to the moon."

Pelly's amendment came as a surprise.

Administration forces had been content to hold the line on any further cuts in the $5.1 billion recommended by the appropriations committee and worked toward that goal.

Go Along

Democratic and Republican members of the space and appropriations committees successfully urged the House to go along with the committee spending figure. They challenged a recent assertion by NASA Administrator James Webb that anything below $5.3 billion—the spending ceiling authorized by Congress this year—would mean missing the 1970 moon deadline by two years.

The four astronauts who watched the house wield an economy ax on the space program were Col. John Glenn, Maj. Virgil Grissom, Cmdr. Alan Shepard and Lt. Col. Scott Carpenter. They were accompanied by their wives.

They heard Chairman Clarence Cannon, D-Mo., of the appropriations committee assail Kennedy's 10-year program to land an American on the moon as a "moonoggle."

The veteran legislator contended that the expected $20 to $40 billion which the effort might cost could be better spent on slum clearance, school construction and health.

Mac Quitting Job

... NOT ABLE TO LEAD PARTY

London (AP)—Harold Macmillan is stepping down as prime minister.

The "Unflappable Mac" who took over the government in the wake of the Suez crisis, then led his Conservative Party to victory in 1959 elections, announced his decision Thursday. He said he will not be well enough to lead the party into battle next year or to fulfill the tasks of prime minister for any lengthy period.

He underwent a successful operation Thursday for removal of his prostate gland. A long period of convalescence lies ahead. He is 69 and has been prime minister since Jan. 10, 1957.

Indefinite

He left it indefinite when he will resign as prime minister, but this will be after the party names a new leader. Under British procedure the prime minister is the leader of the dominant party.

Richard A. Butler seems at this stage most likely to take over.

Macmillan's announcement to the party was disclosed a few hours after he left the operating table. After saying he would not be well enough to lead the Tories into battle at next year's election, Macmillan added:

"Nor could I hope to fulfill the tasks of prime minister for any extended period. I have so informed the Queen."

Low Point

After nearly seven years in office, Macmillan's decision came at a low point in his career. Buffeted by the Profumo affair and other national crises, he was under heavy party pressure to quit even before he was stricken by illness Tuesday.

The letter was written Wednesday after his doctors had diagnosed a bladder obstruction. Despite the opinion of medical experts that he might make a swift recovery, the resignation announcement went ahead.

The letter was read by Foreign Secretary Lord Home at the annual Conservative Party convention in Blackpool, some 200 miles north of London. The news was a shock to the 4,000 delegates.

Before '64

Minister Without Portfolio William Deedes said a successor as prime minister is likely to take office before the end of the year.

Deputy Prime Minister Butler, charged by Macmillan to head the government during his illness, has a chance to consolidate his claims to the job Saturday when he addresses a mass meeting of party workers in Macmillan's stead.

Other contenders are: Lord Hailsham, science minister and leader of the House of Lords, is a favorite of some rank-and-file Tories for his fervent patriotism and flamboyance.

Reginald Maudling, chancellor of the exchequer, supported by most Conservative members of Parliament and looked upon as a sort of New Frontiersman among the Tories.

Lord Home, pushed forward by party members who think his unblemished political record qualifies him for special consideration. He always has held himself aloof from rivalries and personal politicking within the party. But he is believed reluctant to involve himself in inter-party slugging and to surrender his ancient Scottish earldom.

Birmingham, Ala. (UPI)—Negro leaders, rebuffed by city officials, went ahead Thursday with plans for massive new demonstrations that could plunge this city into another integration showdown.

Members of the first team of Dr. Martin Luther King's Southern Christian Leadership Conference held a new "non-violent workshop" Thursday to train local Negroes in picket line duty and mass marching techniques.

City leaders repudiated a demand by King that the city hire 25 Negro policemen within two weeks as the price of abandoning new demonstrations. A public official called King's tactics "a gun at our heads."

Late Rains Boost Corn Crop Estimate

General rains in September, just at the time corn kernels were filling out, led to the two-bushel-per-acre increase in Nebraska yield estimates, Kenneth Logan of the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Thursday.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, which had estimated Nebraska corn yields at 51 bushels per acre as of Sept. 1, boosted that estimate Thursday to 53 bushels for a total yield of 283,126,000 bushels. The national estimated crop is 4,009,093,000 bushels.

Although total Nebraska corn output would be under the recent yearly average, the 53 bushel per acre average has been topped only once in the state's crop history, that being last year when yields averaged 61 per acre.

Beautiful Weather

Logan said crop observers in early September had not expected corn kernels to fill as well as they did, and there was concern also that early frost would damage late planted corn.

"As it turned out, we've had beautiful weather for maturing the crop and are starting to harvest much earlier than usual. And the moisture content of the grain is much lower than is usually the case at the beginning of harvest."

The USDA maintained its Nebraska sorghum crop estimate of 52 bushels per acre or 93,704,000 bushels. Logan termed this crop "real good considering weather conditions last summer." The sorghum harvest is moving rapidly. Many farmers in the Lincoln area have finished the sorghum harvest and have gone to work on corn.

Beet Estimate Hiked

The estimate on sugar beets was increased one-half ton per acre to 16.5 tons per acre or total production of 1,335,000 tons.

Beets enjoyed excellent growing weather during September but now needs some cooler weather or frost to build up sugar content. Some record yields of beets may be recorded this year but sugar content will be low, Logan said. The harvest is moving slowly because weather has been too warm for picking the beets, he said.

LA. Col. James Carr, Lincoln Air Force Base, was in fair condition at St. Elizabeth Hospital after his car went off the Interstate 80 exit ramp leading to the air base road early Thursday night.

Trooper Charles W. Langloss said Col. Carr's automobile rolled "at least two times."

Col. Carr lives in the LAFB bachelor officer's quarters.

Late Rains Boost Corn Crop Estimate

General rains in September, just at the time corn kernels were filling out, led to the two-bushel-per-acre increase in Nebraska yield estimates, Kenneth Logan of the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Thursday.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture in Washington, which had estimated Nebraska corn yields at 51 bushels per acre as of Sept. 1, boosted that estimate Thursday to 53 bushels for a total yield of 233,126,000 bushels. The national estimated crop is 4,009,093,000 bushels.

Although total Nebraska corn output would be under the recent yearly average, the 53 bushel per acre average has been topped only once in the state's crop history, that being last year when yields averaged 61 per acre.

Beautiful Weather
Logan said crop observers in early September had not expected corn kernels to fill as well as they did, and there was concern also that early frost would damage late planted corn.

"As it turned out, we've had beautiful weather for maturing the crop and are starting to harvest much earlier than usual. And the moisture content of the grain is much lower than is usually the case at the beginning of harvest."

The USDA maintained its Nebraska sorghum crop estimate of 52 bushels per acre or 93,704,000 bushels. Logan termed this crop "real good considering weather conditions last summer." The sorghum harvest is moving rapidly. Many farmers in the Lincoln area have finished the sorghum harvest and have gone to work on corn.

Beet Estimate Hiked
The estimate on sugar beets was increased one-half ton per acre to 16.5 tons per acre or total production of 1,336,000 tons.

Beets enjoyed excellent growing weather during September but now needs some cooler weather or frost to build up sugar content. Some record yields of beets may be recorded this year but sugar content will be low, Logan said. The harvest is moving slowly because weather has been too warm for piling the beets, he said.

Pauling Wins Peace Prize

Oslo, Norway (AP) — Dr. Linus Pauling, long a foe of nuclear tests leading to fallout, won the Nobel Peace Prize Thursday.

The crusading Californian, a center of controversy in his own country, thus became a two-time winner of Nobel awards.

The brilliant research scientist from the California Institute of Technology was awarded the Nobel Prize for Chemistry in 1954. He is the second individual to win two Nobel prizes, sharing that honor with Mrs. Marie Curie of Radium research fame.

For 1962, The Norwegian Nobel Committee announced Pauling will be given the prize for 1962. An award for that year never was announced. The 1963 peace prize will be divided between the International Red Cross Committee and the League of Red Cross Societies. It is held at his 160-acre ranch near San Simeon on the California coast, the 62-year-old scientist said he regards the prize as "recognition of the work I and other scientists have been doing in educating people about the need for a treaty to end nuclear testing."

Pauling said he assumed his work had played some part in the limited nuclear test ban treaty which became effective Thursday.

"This action," he added, "may well be the most important in the history of the governments of the world, and could lead to the abolition of war."

First to tell the scientist the news was his daughter, Mrs. Linda Kamb, who telephoned him from her home in Pasadena. She reported:

"He was very surprised. He said: 'The '62 prize? Then there was silence. I think he was too surprised and happy to say anything.'"

The reason for the award will be announced Dec. 10 when Pauling receives the 257,219 kroner ($49,465) prize in a ceremony in Oslo.

But a friend, Dr. Otto Bastiansen, professor of chemistry at Oslo University, mentioned Pauling's campaign against testing.

"Pauling's greatest effort was that he calculated the harmful effects of radioactive fallout," he said. "He also got other scientists interested, and has created an opinion against nuclear tests among scientists all over the world."

He also collected signatures on a petition from scientists on both sides of the Iron Curtain and asked the United Nations to make the big powers stop the tests.

Hot Water

The signature campaign got Pauling into hot water with the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee in 1960. At the risk of contempt of Congress, he refused to name scientists who helped him get the signatures. The subcommittee accused him of "a consistent pro-Soviet bias."

The professor has denied under oath that he is a Communist. As far back as 1950 he declared:

"This problem of an atomic war must not be confused by minor problems, such as communism versus capitalism."

This theme was elaborated upon in a book, "No More War," first published in 1958 and revised in 1962. His friend Bastiansen mentioned this book, saying it contributed to the creation of an opinion against nuclear tests among scientists. In the book, Pauling wrote:

"If the world continues along the path of insanity, we are doomed to die — we Americans, all of us, and all the Russian people, and perhaps most of the people of European nations."

Equally ready to take on scientist or senator, Pauling once described the Senate subcommittee as "a discredited to the Congress" and disputed Dr. Edward Teller, often called the father of the hydrogen bomb. Pauling accused Teller of issuing misleading statements on the effect of radioactive fallout in arguing for continued nuclear testing.

Pauling contended that nuclear testing menaced the health of the living and threatened future generations with deformities.

Cutting Taxes Now Would Be Folly—Curtis

Washington (AP)—Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., said it would be folly to cut taxes at a time when the national debt is increasing each day.

"The place to cut is federal spending and then we'll be ready to examine a cut in taxes," Curtis said in a statement. He is a member of the Senate Finance Committee which handles tax legislation.

He said if the proposal to cut taxes, now before his committee, is enacted it would tend to increase already huge interest costs because more deficits would result.

Each billion dollars of debt costs the taxpayers $33.3 million in annual interest charges alone, he said, and from September 1962 to September 1963, the national debt of nearly $308 billion rose $5.7 billion, hiking interest costs $190 million a year.

FIND 12 VIET NAM VICTIMS

Saigon, Viet Nam (AP)—Military authorities announced the bodies of 12 Americans killed in the crashes of two U.S. Marine helicopters Tuesday were recovered late Thursday from the Communist-ruled countryside southwest of Da Nang.

Deaths of the 12—nine Marines and three Navy men—represented the heaviest loss of American lives in a single operation since the United States started its military buildup in South Viet Nam two years ago. The toll of American dead from combat and other causes rose to 125.

The two Marine helicopters, H34s, were lost in a search for a Vietnamese fighter-bomber that crashed in a dive-bombing attack on Tuesday on a Communist position 50 miles southwest of Da Nang, a coastal city 340 miles northeast of Saigon.

Abroad the fighter-bomber were Capt. Dean A. Wadsworth of Coutilla, Tex., and a Vietnamese officer. They are officially listed as missing.

The helicopters carried four Marine officers, five enlisted men, a Navy doctor and two Navy hospital corpsmen. The senior Marine was Capt. William T. Harris of Mesquite, Tex. Lt. Bruce C. Farrell of Westlake, Ohio, headed the Navy medical contingent.

Investigators working under the protection of armed guards sought to determine whether they were felled by accident or enemy action.

Military spokesmen here said first reports indicated no bullet holes were found, but extensive damage to the helicopters made it difficult to determine whether they had been hit by ground fire. They discounted a rumor the two craft collided in the air.

Sergeant Who Killed Self 'Aided Russians'

... DEFENSE DEPT. SAYS

Washington (AP)—The Defense Department announced Thursday night that Sgt. I.C. Jack E. Dunlap, who killed himself while under investigation, sold U.S. secrets to Soviet agents over a two-year period.

Asst. Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester told a news conference that the material did not include U.S. codes and ciphers—the most sensitive items handled by the super-secret National Security Agency where the Army sergeant had been assigned.

"There is evidence that he did commit espionage by selling certain classified materials to agents of the Soviet Union," Sylvester said.

Immoral
The Pentagon spokesman told reporters that an investigation, which developed after an employment check disclosed a record of "petty theft and immoral conduct," led to evidence that Dunlap, an 11-year Army veteran, sold secrets "for the sole purpose of receiving a monetary reward."

The Washington Evening Star, in a copyrighted story, pictured the sergeant as a high living horseplayer and ladies' man who received about $60,000 from Russia for some of this country's secrets. Sylvester said Dunlap's wife had told investigators the sergeant indicated that during the first year of his activity he got between $30,000 and $40,000.

The Defense Department called a news conference after it was disclosed that Dunlap, who committed suicide by carbon monoxide poisoning in his parked car last July 23, had been considered a possible security violator.

Dunlap, a 35-year-old native of Bogalusa, La., made one previous attempt to kill himself by taking an overdose of barbiturates about a month before he finally succeeded in killing himself near Ferndale, Md.

Investigation has failed to indicate that any other U.S. employee was involved or had knowledge about Dunlap's espionage activities, Sylvester added.

Full Probe
He said Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara had given instructions that a complete investigation be conducted into the case.

Sylvester stressed that the National Security Agency is a "highly compartmentalized activity," adding: "While Sgt. Dunlap had access to classified material in line of duty, his relative position and the general compartmentalization denied him access to a wide area of highly classified and sensitive information."

Carmen, Audience Howl As Hound Joins Chorus

London (AP)—The famous Sadler's Wells Opera was in tremendous voice and rattling the rafters with Bizet's Carmen when a dog named Boo Boo joined the chorus.

The sounds Boo Boo made were never envisaged by Bizet.

Boo Boo just plain howled. This was greeted by a giggle from someone in the front row. Laughter being contagious, it spread back through the house, up into the royal circle and then to the galleries.

Cast Tries
Meanwhile the cast sang on, bravely. The trouble was, Boo Boo did too. Boo Boo had volume. He's a Pyrenean mountain dog who eats five pounds of meat daily and weighs 130 pounds.

The audience's laughter affected the cast. Carmen began giggling.

Well up stage, Boo Boo commenced scratching himself.

Too Much
This was too much. The opera giggled to an abrupt stop.

Several things started happening at once.

From the audience an athletic young man hopped on the stage. From the wings two hefty tenors and a shirt-sleeved stagehand converged on howling, barking, scratching Boo Boo and gave him the old bum's rush.

The athletic young man identified himself as Robert Watts, a 24-year-old school-teacher and owner of the dog.

Embarrassing
"For me it was life's most embarrassing moment," explained Watts. "For Boo Boo's my dog."

"Get him out of here," shouted a baritone.

Out the stage door went Watts and Boo Boo.

Not Far
"I don't live far from here," said Watts, "and he must have followed me. He's a very intelligent dog, but he certainly didn't know I'd gone to the opera."

Boo Boo's operatic career lasted three minutes. With the dog out of the way the cast resumed the tragedy of Carmen. But it was tough going, for laughter lingers on.

—HOLD GAME IN SECRET—

Incidents Cut Philly School Attendance

Philadelphia (AP)—An outbreak of interracial violence among teenagers in South Philadelphia has cut school attendance in the area more than a third and caused a high school football game to be played in secret.

Police are at a loss as to what caused the outbreak — it started a week ago — and say many parents apparently now are afraid to send their children to school. Most of the skirmishes, police say, have resulted in minor injuries, some by slashing with sharp objects.

For example, one boy reported two others tried to jam a can opener in his face; a 16-year-old girl said three girls grabbed her as she was walking and jabbed her wrist with a piece of glass; another girl said 10 boys accosted her and one slashed her face with a razor blade.

White vs Black
In each case, police said, it was either a white victim claiming he or she was attacked by a Negro or Negroes, or a Negro victim contending the attacker or attackers were white.

Police Inspector Howard Gatter said Thursday he has assigned 100 extra policemen to the heavily populated residential area. The neighborhood is dotted by row upon row of two, three and even four story houses resided in generally by a low income group. The homes have little or no yards that can be used to play in. Streets are used frequently for playing games.

The fighting so far has been entirely among juveniles, most of them pupils at the area's public high schools.

South Philadelphia High and Bok Vocational.

Above Normal
A school spokesman said Wednesday that more than a third of the pupils missed school at South Philadelphia high. On a normal day absenteeism runs about 10%. At Bok 440 were absent. The normal number is 250-270. Thursday, 1,601 of the 4,500 students at South Philly were absent; 353 of 2,133 did not attend at Bok.

While police roam the streets, a "truth squad" of student leaders at the high schools met with school officials to seek ways to reduce the tensions. The pupils agreed they would try to stop the rumors of violence from circulating.

They said that whenever they hear a rumor — about a slashing for example — they will check with school officials, find out the truth and then circulate it among friends.

Good Kids
"These are good kids," said a spokesman. "They have many friends. As a truth squad they can be very helpful."

Because of the unrest, the site of a football game between Bok and South Philadelphia was shifted to a neutral field and played without the benefit of spectators. Pupils were not told where or what time the game would be played.

First Trainload English Steel Sent To Nebraska

By GENE BUDIG
Outstate Nebraska Bureau

Columbus — A train whistle was heard in the distance. Walter Behlen looked down the track.

"This will make a lot of people sit up and take notice of Nebraska," declared the chairman of the board of Behlen Manufacturing Company.

Minutes later, the train, some 60 cars long, chugged near.

It carried the first complete trainload of steel ever received in Nebraska from England.

"There's 3,400 tons of 48-inch-wide coiled ribbons of steel aboard," he noted.

The cargo will be used in the company's prefabrication of steel buildings for farm and industrial use.

According to the spokesman inspecting one of the cars, the shipment represents about 10% of the company's annual requirement.

The steel came via chartered ship from England through the St. Lawrence Seaway to Chicago where the special train was loaded.

Behlen said much of it will be returned to Europe by the same route in the form of the company's Nebraska-made steel buildings.

The shipment is part of the Columbus firm's increasing worldwide trade program, he related.

Recently, the company shipped 22 carloads of prefabricated building parts made of American steel for a candy factory in Milan, Italy.

Nebraska-built Behlen buildings also are going up throughout Canada, he said.

The English steel was purchased at about 7% less than the price of American steel.

However, Behlen related, the company ordered the steel in face of last May's threatened steel strike which did not materialize.

The company usually uses domestic steel, he added, and uses only a "dribble" of foreign steel "to keep in the market."

G. E. Behlen, company vice-president, traveled with the steel. The company president, H. P. (Mike) Behlen, officially greeted the train.

Governor Won't Delay Special Session Start

Gov. Frank Morrison Thursday reaffirmed his intention to call the Legislature into special session Oct. 21, and said he expects to issue the formal call for the session Monday.

He made the comment following a meeting in his office requested by several members of the Legislature's Budget Committee, some of whom urged Morrison to delay the session until after the Supreme Court rules on pending finance matters.

Senators meeting with the governor included George Gerdes of Alliance, Don Thompson of McCook, Elvin Adamson of Nelz, Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln, Harold Stryker of Rising City and Hal Bridenbaugh of Dakota City.

Police Arrest Lincoln Man After Chase

Police Thursday night arrested a Lincoln man who, they said, was the subject of a high speed chase by Officer Ronald Bruder early Thursday morning.

The man apparently had fled on foot after abandoning his car south of the city on 27th Street. He was arrested at his place of employment Thursday night.

The chase began after the man reportedly assaulted his wife in a parked car at 14th and P. Officer Merle Westling said the woman jumped from the car and the man drove away as he approached to check a report of a woman screaming at the location.

The woman told Westling the man had a gun, and this information was relayed to Bruder who began the chase at 16th and P.

At 27th and Capital Parkway, Bruder said he pulled beside the man's car in an effort to stop it. The man yelled "follow me" and accelerated rapidly, Bruder said.

The officer said he pulled in front of the man's car, but the man swung around the police cruiser, scraping it as he did so.

The chase continued south on 27th at speeds up to 80 miles per hour, Bruder said. The officer was unable to locate the man after finding the abandoned car.

Suit Against 5 Lincoln Policemen Dismissed

A damage suit filed by a Lincoln youth against five Lincoln police officers was dismissed by Lancaster District Court Judge Elmer Scheele Thursday at the youth's request.

Attorney Merrill Reller filed the motion for dismissal.

Reller represented Darryl Chapelle, who through his mother, Mrs. Vandale Thaller, had sought damages for alleged false arrest and assault in connection with a November, 1961, accident.

In the petition, which sought damages totaling approximately $8,000, Chapelle alleged the officers entered his home without permission and took him to a hospital for examination.

Both Mrs. Thaller and her husband had testified before the jury of eight women and four men of incidents after the police arrived at their home and took the youth to the hospital. They said they were not informed by officers that Darryl was being taken from the hospital to police headquarters.

One of the defendants in the suit, Paul Cotter, now in California, had filed a cross-petition alleging the youth had spat on him and assaulted him.

Cotter's attorney subsequently dismissed the cross-petition.

Other defendants named in the action were Roger LaPage, Paul Spahn, Bob Myers and Darold Moog.

Kansas City (A) — Two Nebraskans received top awards Thursday at the 36th annual convention of the Future Farmers of America.

Larry Dale Hudkins, 19, R a ymond, Neb., was named the national soil and water management award winner. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Hudkins, who operate 1,350 acres of farm land west of Raymond, Hudkins was the FFA star farmer of Nebraska in 1962. He was graduated from Waverly High School.

Herb Stuthman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stuthman, Columbus, Neb., won the regional farm mechanics award. Hudkins' conservation activities included the construction of a 1,100 foot diversion terrace, a 2,000 cubic yard earthen dam, securing of a water right to pump irrigation water from west Oak Creek, preparation of 148 acres for irrigation, establishment of a water distribution system for this land, seeding of 3,000 feet of waterway to brome, and planting of 1.2 miles of multiflora roses.

Stuthman has been interested in farm mechanics since he enrolled in vocational agriculture in Columbus High School.

Meanwhile, two FFA chapters from Nebraska were among the 63 chapters receiving gold emblems at the convention. The awards went to the Kearney and Pender FFA chapters for outstanding activity records during the 1962-63 school year.

Wheat Heading For Russia

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

The most difficult thing to figure out in connection with President Kennedy's announced decision on this nation's selling wheat to Russia is why the decision has been built up as such a historic one. The fact is that there is not a decent argument against the sale of wheat to Russia and the advantages of such sales to the U.S. are rather prominent.

These advantages are so prominent, in fact, that more surprising than U.S. willingness to sell would be Russian willingness to buy. With the whoopla we have made about the prospects of selling, it is assumed the government has inside information to the effect that Russia would be willing to buy but the USSR would certainly be doing so reluctantly. For one thing, Russia will buy only because her own harvest has been a failure. There is nothing the Reds can do to alter that situation, any more than you can make a silk purse from a sow's ear.

It is sort of like your barn burning down. You might have insurance to cover the loss but you can't bring back the barn and the fire is a loss to the economy, any way you cut the pie. Russia cannot avoid the reality of the fact that she has been unable to muster the know-how and resources to produce enough food to feed her people, while the U.S. could feed almost the whole world if it needed to.

When and if we sell wheat to Russia, we will be improving our balance-of-trade situation, getting dollars and gold into our international reserves. At the same time, we will be cutting down the liability of excess wheat production — a two-way savings that is hard to beat.

And where do we stand in view of such sales in the political arena, in the cold war? Do we assist the cause of communism by selling wheat to the Reds? Not really, because we cannot prevent Russia from obtaining what she needs some place in the world. There is not a U.S. ally who will not sell wheat to Russia and they do it even with the knowledge that some of the grain will find its way to Cuba. So our refusal to sell has done nothing but help the farmers of Canada and Europe and nothing to slow down or damage the march of communism. At best, we have stood firm on principle but more than likely we have just been cutting off our nose to spite our face. If there is even a political issue that can be made out of Kennedy's decision, we are unable to find it.

Making Things Official

The split in the communist empire was recently given a good touch of reality. Some have doubted that the split was real, that perhaps it was all a stunt to throw the West off guard and get ahead in the game. But there is now a report that a Red Chinese official in Tokyo has defected to Russia by scaling a wall around the Soviet embassy. The Russians granted the fellow political asylum.

Things in Red China must certainly be in a sad state when their citizens will defect to Russia. How the USSR can be looked upon as an improvement in terms of living is a little hard to understand. And what, in the end, does the Red Chinese official think will be the basic difference in things as a result of his changing allegiance?

Pauling Again Honored

Dr. Linus Pauling, chemistry professor at California Institute of Technology, is one of only two scientists twice honored with a Nobel prize.

In 1954 he was granted the Nobel award for constructive research into the forces which hold molecules together. The nature of his second award will not be detailed until the presentation ceremonies December 10. This follows Nobel custom.

The twice honored scientist gives prestige to American science and denotes the rise of the United States in the field of pure research. Prior to World War II European science held most of the honors while the United States contented itself with the practical application of the discoveries. This was a productive country. Its education was principally directed to training in the services. Research in pure science was somewhat of a starveling. In contrast the Old World, which felt less demand from business and industry

No such issue showed up with the visit in Nebraska of Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman. In fact, Mr. Freeman showed some signs of surprise upon his visit to Nebraska. He found no opposition to the wheat sales and he found a lot of farm sentiment for something other than "farm freedom." He found a lot of farmers who realize that "freedom" to go broke is not exactly the kind of freedom they want. He found substantial support for a government farm program and was advised by some farm people that if the wheat referendum were held today, it would carry by a good margin. Mr. Freeman, in turn, presented a few more facts and ideas for Nebraskans to chew on.

He noted, for one thing, that the proposed wheat sale to Russia presents no cure-all for the wheat grower, mainly because such sales cannot be relied upon year in and year out. Also, he said, even with anticipated record wheat exports this year of some 900,000,000 bushels, the nation will still have a carry-over in surplus of 750,000,000 bushels.

Added to the U.S. surplus is another 500,000,000 bushels that Canada has on hand and holds in competition with us. If the export figure for the U.S. does hit 900,000,000 bushels, we would be putting on foreign markets almost twice as much as we are moving on our domestic market, a sobering thought for those who say that imports are killing the U.S. farmer.

The secretary was asked by one farmer what the answer is to the cost-price squeeze. Four years ago, explained the farmer, a combine was purchased for $4,000 to $5,000 and the man said he bought a new one this year for $9,000. You have answered your own question, Freeman came back. You have to have marketing control just as the manufacturer controls his production and labor controls its output. If all of U.S. labor and industry produced at full capacity and ability, there would be such a glut of men and products on the market that disaster would be inevitable.

Only farming remains as the major industry still trying to make a go of things without restraint upon its production and without provision for protection of the price of its product. We have not been particularly wise in all aspects of agriculture but we seem to be learning more and more as time goes by. Too often in the past we have been inclined to live in a dream world of economic assurances that did not exist.

Marketing Control

Perhaps the defector is the victim of somewhat of the same thinking that creeps up now and then among people of this country. Maybe he thinks that Russia and Red China don't really stand for the same thing. Maybe he has confused their difference over means with a difference over ends. It is a mistake that is easy to make, particularly at such times as these when there is good feeling over the nuclear test ban agreement.

But while Russia and Red China could even come to blows as a result of their disagreements, they share the West as a common enemy. With communism we will never find real friendship. At best, we can seek a day-to-day accommodation with a political order of sinister motives. The communist split is real but what this means to us is still an uncertainty.

Comment On Justice

Birmingham, Alabama, was visited by criminal bombings during September, most noteworthy instances being the demolition of the residence of a Negro, and the explosion later in a church which took the lives of four little Negro girls.

While a shocked nation looked on several law enforcement agencies searched for those who fired the bombs. One of them came up with three men and the state wheels of justice began to grind. The trials are now over. The loss of life and great damage to property did not get into court. But the three men were found guilty of illegal possession of dynamite — a misdemeanor which was punished by fines of $100 and sentences of 180 days in jail. Appeal bond was set at $300 for each man which was quickly furnished.

Certainly, Alabama-justice fulfilled its procedural requirements. The results may be justifiable. But they are no answer for the villainous death of four little girls. Meanwhile, John Perdue a young resident of Denver, Colorado, a senior at Harvard University, was taken into custody September 5 after he had participated in a demonstration at Americus, Georgia in behalf of civil rights for Negroes. Reputedly there is evidence that he broke the window in a police car, and was impudent with an officer of the law and struggled against arrest.

Perdue has been in jail ever since under extraordinarily high bond and is awaiting trial on charges of insurrection, a very serious crime which could be punishable by death.

The only summarization one can make of this is a reminder that justice is a procedure while right and wrong can vary according to the way people here and there define it.

Could Have Halted Dominican Coup

WASHINGTON — It is the zero hour for the Alliance For Progress. This was the general consensus of senators who debated the march of Latin military dictatorships at a closed door session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

The situation has become so serious that Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., chairman of the Senate Sub-Committee on Latin America, told State Department officials they should have arranged a show of military force to save the democracies of the Dominican Republic and Honduras from overthrow.

Perhaps the military seizures could have been prevented, Morse suggested, by the timely arrival of a U.S. aircraft carrier or a contingent of Marines.

This was also the view of Sen. Ernest Gruening, the grizzled Democrat from Alaska once in charge of the Caribbean area under Roosevelt and an adviser on the original Good Neighbor policy.

Gruening, who was invited to attend the closed door session of the Foreign Relations Committee, though not a member, argued that if any government requested intervention by the United States the United States could intervene without encroaching on national sovereignty.

"We sent the entire Sixth Fleet to Lebanon and landed 6,000 Marines when the president of Lebanon asked for help in a much less serious situation," Sen. Gruening recalled. "But when the Dominican ambassador officially asked for help, where were we?"

"This was the first honest election ever held in the Dominican Republic," the senator from Alaska continued. "If the Kennedy administration isn't going to lose its shirt in Latin America it should now cut off the Dominican sugar quota, cut off all U.S. aid and withhold our ambassador until President Bosch is taken back."

Nervous, chain-smoking ambassador John Bartlow Martin who had been called back to Washington from Santo Domingo told the senators he had expected the military revolt. The tip-off came when the top Dominican military failed to show up at a reception for a visiting American admiral, Rear Admiral William E. Farrall, commander of the 15th Naval District.

"Mr. ambassador," broke in Morse, glaring fiercely from beneath shaggy eyebrows. "How did the admiral get into the Dominican Republic?"

"He flew in," said the ambassador.

"You testified," pressed Morse, "that it was known for some time that this coup was on its way. What would have been the result if an aircraft carrier had embarked to Santo Domingo or if the admiral had been accompanied by an honor guard of Marines?"

Congress Uses Double Standard

WASHINGTON — The Senate, which has never declined to consider its own conflicts of interest, is talking about framing a code of ethics for Senate staffs. This would represent its apology in case of Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, who resigned as majority secretary only a few minutes before he was to discuss his lucrative private business with senior senators.

It is a shabby and sanctimonious one. Congressional staffs are as honest as the Congress which employs them and not more so. Baker imitated some bad examples around here and has been caught doing it. A man of great personal charm, skill and love for politics goes out, but the possibility of corruption of others like him remains.

Great blame lies with senior senators who pride themselves on being custodians of the noblest traditions of the Senate. They are the so-called establishment, and they resist change in the institution they control. It is now shown that in their preoccupation with their power system, they lost control of one of their most important employees.

The man most greatly harmed politically by Baker's fall from grace is his long-time sponsor, Vice-President Lyndon Johnson. As majority leader, Johnson chose Baker, taught him the uses of power and how to ingratiate himself with senators. Bobby became "Lyndon's man" or the "101st senator."

When Sen. Mike Mansfield succeeded to the leadership, he kept Bobby in deference to Bobby's experience and to Johnson, who had put Mansfield in the line of succession. It was a fateful decision for the kindly Mansfield and for the Democratic party.

For apart from the scandal headlines, it is a well-known fact that among Bobby's admirers, another Bobby, the attorney general, is not included.

THE NEIGHBORS SAY

Cornpicking, Then And Now

By MONA B. PARKER
E. R. Montgomery briefly and poetically and accurately stated in the Morrill Mail his status quo and that of many another traveler as far as the change of seasons and the state of finances are concerned:

"Autumn has come, summer has went; vacation is over, money is spent!"

Indian summer, John Sanders proclaims in the Auburn Press-Tribune, is "the time for roamin' over the hills." There is no other time of year, he says, that brings forth such a feeling of "pleasant satisfaction that good hard work and a sincere faith have combined to produce rewards."

With the hills starting to color, the beginning of a bountiful harvest, and the feeling of contentment at the wonders of autumn, he recommends a leisurely drive through some of Nemaha County's back roads most any afternoon.

Helen Lough of the Albion News would be a little more charmed with the whole thing if the leaves could change color without falling off the trees. Still, she reasons, if the trees weren't left stark and forsaken through the winter, where would be the delight in spring?

"The good Lord figures it all out for our maximum enjoyment, I do believe."

Another week, and the lawn will be knee-deep in cottonwood leaves, Mrs. Eleanor Seberger writes in the Dawson County Herald. Late in the blackbirds have been holding a noisy convocation in the treetops.

"All signs of fall . . . and an end to a summer's labors. A wonderful feeling, though for us it signals time to start dressing out and canning old hens, whose egg output has slumped. I can't say I look forward to that."

She also advises one of her daughters, away at school: "If you're feeling homesick, remember all the eggs to be

There is one little Hastings lad who is so completely disillusioned about anything that the institutions of learning might have to offer him that he is ready to sever all connections with the educational halls. Attending school for the first time, he has informed his mother that he is going to quit. He can neither read nor write, he explained, "and they won't let me talk."

cased in the basement, and that should help."

A Ulysses family holds something of a record as far as "distributive education" is concerned. At least Mrs. Rosie Vanis thinks so and her youngsters are about as well distributed among different schools as is possible. Julius and David are a junior and a freshman at Aquinas High School. Mary is in the Seventh Grade at Seward Junior High. Susan is in the second grade of the Ulysses Public School. Mrs. Vanis teaches Grades 3, 4 and 5 at Surprise and attends two night classes at the University of Nebraska.

The family lives in Ulysses and commutes in and out and around in all directions from that point.

Mrs. Joe Heitz, columnist for the Schuyler Sun, contrasts corn-picking as it was once known with the autumn chore as farmers know it today. In those other years, it meant that each stalk had to be approached, each ear yanked off and tossed into a wagon and at noon and again at night, a tired man had to scoop all those ears into a crib or other enclosure. Long before daylight the next day, there were chores to be done with stiff, sore hands. The women of the household prepared breakfasts "that would scandalize the coffee-juicer-doll man of today." Then just at dawn the husking wagons rolled out of the yard. The thump-thump of ears against the bang-boards echoed throughout the neighborhood, "each man timing his neighbor just by listening for the first ear thumping against the board." And the women often helped with the picking, too.

The process of picking today is the same, she explains. Each stalk must still be approached and each ear yanked off and tossed into a wagon. But the machines do the work. Tractors pull the loaded wagons to the crib and elevators unload them. The hours are still long; a man still knows he has done a day's work, but the aching backs, cracked and bleeding hands, sore and calloused feet are now just not so fond memories.

Senate Power

Lincoln, Neb.
What a sorry picture the great United States is presenting to the world with its governing body tied up in disagreement over the real meaning of the principle which has been our greatest claim to pride and honor.

A people will point to a Statue of Liberty and will sing "Land of the noble free" but will continue timidly or stolidly or savagely to evade or resist truth.

Let us face a little portion of that truth regarding our U.S. Senate. Both the Senate and the House must act on legislation and the Senate can readily defeat the will of even a heavy majority of the people by the great difference in representation and voting power.

The people of the nine smallest states could throw 18 senators' votes against the 18 from the nine largest states and with four million people, cancel votes of 90 million, or half of our total population.

By chance of our residence in Nebraska, we may feel the greater responsibility when we realize that individually we have three times the power in Senate votes that Missourians have, and about 12 times that of the citizen of California or New York.

I would like to convey to the senators from my state that their votes on a question of human rights must, in good conscience and in the spirit of their oath of office, be as consistent for the whole people as any vote in time of national emergency. H.G.H.

Control By People

Lincoln, Neb.
This state in allowing or permitting the Supreme Court to set up by its own rules the "integrated bar" and the Nebraska State Bar Association, keeps company with the states of New York, Missouri, New Jersey, Florida and Louisiana, the latter hardly counting since it follows a type of French civil law rather than Anglo-Saxon common law.

All the rest of the states have laws passed by their legislatures as representatives of the people, controlling lawyers and establishing bar associations. Thus the laws can be amended by the people through the legislature when the need arises. One state, Arkansas, amended its constitution before it would permit its Supreme Court to set up a bar association for the state. This simply shows that our supreme court did take a high-handed way of doing things back in 1937 when it created the "integrated bar."

A further point—as a non-taxpaying institution (the members claim they pay dues) the bar is frequently found lobbying in front of the legislature on bills that cost the taxpayers of the state more money. Very seldom do they appear in their capacity as members of the state bar association in an effort to reduce the tax which property owners share. This, coupled with the fact that they pay no federal income tax on their income, yet they are in front of the legislature all the time as lobbyists. Paying nothing to support state government, why are they trying to increase its costs all the time? The supporters of the status quo should answer.

Family Circus

Lincoln, Neb.
There were eight children in our family and things were pretty thin with hardships. Sometimes people hang onto memories of rough times in their youth.

The Star can be assured that every morning I get a blast from "The Family Circus." It never fails to bring back memories of something that happened when I was a youngster. I will swear that the artist, Bill Keane, had a spy in our family.

The one about the crib pad under the tablecloth was out of this world, and I had a brother just like that. I had one sister who for some reason or other always got the fruit or lettuce that had the worms in it. There have been times when I have pondered on this and wondered if she was just unlucky, or if I was hungry enough just to sit and eat and never look. We also had one who for some reason or other got the cherry pits.

As for me, at a ball game or standing talking with the fellows or a group, I am the boy the blackbirds set their radar sights on and they seem to have an uncanny ability to hit their target.

I would imagine that "The Family Circus" brings as many happy moments of mirth to many others as it does to me.

Court Argument Accepts Time-Price Differential As Interest

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer
The State Supreme Court Thursday was told by counsel supporting the 1963 installment sales act that "we are now content to accept (classification of the time-price differential as interest) as the law."

Id and constitutional notwithstanding such terminology, attorney John F. Kerrigan of Fremont declared. "We will not belabor the argument that the time-price differential is not interest," he told the court. "We are now content to accept this as the law."

ful regulation" of the difference between cash price and time price in a valid time sale. Kerrigan presented oral arguments for the appellee in an appeal from a Dodge County District Court decision holding the new act constitutional.

The Legislature "followed the guidance of this court" in enacting LB811, Kerrigan said, having "promptly eliminated provisions to which the court objected," in throwing out the 1959 installment sales act. Other than the rate classification provisions which have been removed, the new act contains "no additional constitutional infirmities," Kerrigan contended.

Until the 1959 act was adopted, there was "no limit on time price differential," the attorney noted. Thus, that act and LB811 mark "a move in the direction of limiting amounts that may be charged."

Lyle B. Gill of Fremont, attorney for the appellant in the case (Stanton vs. Mattson), contended that LB811 violates constitutional prohibitions, including requirements for the classification of subject matter and persons. "It is unmistakable that the Legislature is talking about interest," Gill said, because the bill regulates "a charge for financing."

$568,000 Homer School Proposed

Homer — A special election will be held at Homer Nov. 5 on a $568,000 bond issue proposal. If approved the bond issue would finance a 450-pupil school building to house kindergarten-through-high school grades. It would replace buildings at Homer and five county school locations. A 12-acre plot has been purchased at the southwest edge of Homer for the building. Plans call for a T-shaped one-story structure with 52,000 square feet of floor space.

Some Stores May Defy State's New Sunday Closing Law

The controversial Sunday closing law is scheduled to go into effect Oct. 20, but there were indications Thursday that some stores were planning to ignore it.

All of the laws enacted without the emergency clause by the 1963 Legislature are slated to become operative Saturday, Oct. 19, the 90th day after final adjournment of the Legislature.

George Martin of Omaha, president of the O.P. Skaggs Co., has said his firm believes the Sunday closing statute is unconstitutional and that it was "instigated purely for private interests of some merchants."

Martin said Skaggs stores in Lincoln, at 48th and Van Dorn, and the one in Grand Island will remain open despite the law. He said Skaggs operations in Omaha will not be affected since there is a city ordinance there stating that stores must remain closed either on Saturday or Sunday.

An attorney general's office spokesman said enforcement of the new law will be up to county attorneys.

The Sunday closing law permits sale on Sunday of more than 60 items. Included among items which may be sold legally are baby foods, dairy products, bakery goods, confectionaries, beverages, fresh fruits and vegetables if sold on the premises where they are grown, food prepared for immediate consumption, tobacco products, newspapers, magazines, and auto service station supplies.

Under the new law, stores which operate now on Sunday can still open their doors, but they will be prohibited from selling goods, except for those specifically authorized in the law.

There are some stores which, under the law, will be permitted to sell anything. In this grouping will be the so-called "mama-papa" stores which employ no more than proprietor, and one part-time employee not working more than five days a week.

Also eligible to remain open and to sell the banned items on Sunday are those whose operators observe Saturday rather than Sunday as the sabbath.

Budget Question—Pound Or Pull?

"Are we going to strictly pound, or will we have to pull?"

That was the question facing one Statehouse department head Thursday who had his colleagues in stitches as he merrily puzzled how to classify a broken hammer in the Budget Committee's latest quest for fiscal information.

One of the categories in the detailed questionnaire sent to all department heads this week by the legislative fiscal analyst asks what kind of equipment each agency plans to purchase between now and June 30.

As the agency head explained it, his department has a hammer with a broken claw.

"If we stick with pounding, we're in business. But if we have to pull any nails between now and next June 30, we'll just have to replace it."

Laymen Named To Help Select Judges

Gov. Frank Morrison Thursday disclosed his appointments to the various district court nominating commissions.

The governor appointed three laymen to each nominating group. Nebraska Bar Association members previously elected three attorneys to each group.

The commissions will nominate at least two candidates to fill a judgeship vacancy when it occurs, with the governor making the final selection.

The nominating commissions were set up under the merit system for judicial selection approved by the voters last November and implemented by the 1963 Legislature.

The governor's appointments, terms to end on Jan. 1 in the year indicated:

Laotian Russ Visit 'Only For Health'

Vientiane, Laos (AP) — Gen. Kong Le, chief of the Laotian neutralist army, returned to Vientiane after three months sick leave.

Kong Le said he had visited the Soviet Union solely for health reasons and his health has much improved. He refused to discuss the question of Russian aid, saying "this matter is for the government."

Club Aids Children

If the enthusiastic beginning of 1963-64 is any indication, this will be a wonderful year for all the foster children in the state of Nebraska who will benefit from the money-raising activities of the state's Mrs. JayCeas.

Last year, all the Mrs. JayCeas in Nebraska combined managed to raise $1,200 for their state-wide project, providing many necessities—and often little bits of pleasure and happiness—for the children.

However, more than half of last year's total already has been raised by one group, the Mrs. JayCeas of Lincoln, who sponsored a most successful benefit fashion show last month.

Mrs. Don Weller (at left), president of the Lincoln Mrs. JayCeas, is pictured presenting the club's check for $625, proceeds from the benefit, to Mrs. John F. Zimmer, III, of Lincoln (right), state vice president in charge of the project. At center is Mrs. A. O. Gigstad of Nebraska City, president of the Nebraska Mrs. JayCeas.

Suburban Activity In Full Swing

MEADOW LANE

October is undoubtedly one of the prettiest months of the year—this is the season when landscapes are splashed with dabs of gold, brown and orange; when the spicy odor of burning leaves and the laughter of children roasting wieners and marshmallows around the bonfires, fills the air.

Autumn also seems to have that certain ingredient which puts Suburban residents in an entertaining frame of mind for there are few families in the vicinity without social plans.

And because of the beautiful weather we have many visitors in the Meadow Lane area and among them are Col. and Mrs. Roland H. Iland who are the current guests of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Tussing.

Col. and Mrs. Iland arrived in Lincoln on Wednesday and will be visiting here for some time before returning to their home in Aurora, Colo.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stephens were Mr. Stephens' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Stephens of Columbia, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens spent the five days touring the Capital City with their son and daughter-in-law, as Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stephens and their daughter, Shari, will be leaving Lincoln soon to make their home in Chicago, Ill.

In farewell courtesy to Mrs. Stephens, Mrs. Len Beckenbach and Mrs. John Summerville entertained several neighbors at a coffee last Tuesday evening.

Bidding farewell to their neighbor Mrs. Hank Horton, Mrs. Lloyd Harold, Mrs. Frank DiNatale, Mrs. Harold Curry, Mrs. Tom Cushing and Mrs. Hal Williamson.

And nothing seems to "spice" up a weekend evening more than a game of bridge. A host and hostess for such an evening were Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Kittrell, who entertained at their Meadow Lane home last Friday evening.

Their guests for two tables of bridge were Dr. and Mrs. John Howe, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kittrell, and Mr. and Mrs. Gar Donnelson.

"Dear Julia" -- "Mollie"

It takes skill to read between the lines—and it takes luck to discover something old and interesting between the pages of a book. That's what happened at the Book Fair, currently in session at the Lincoln City Library.

The letter, found in a book donated to the course, was written on Sept. 9, 1883—80 years ago—The salutation was "Dear Julia"—and the signature was simply "Mollie". We liked it. We hope you will, and here it is:

September 9, 1883
My Dear Julia,
I am glad to receive letters from you and Nellie and to know you are all well and happy — was afraid after your tedious time of getting home that you would resolve not to leave again very soon and especially without Henry.

Well, we are getting along in the same old quiet way—had my little friend, Clara Gates, with us last Sunday. She received the appointment as music teacher of Doane College, Crete, Nebraska, and was on her way there. She receives $800 for year and her expenses will be very light.

The past week we have been entertaining Methodist ministers—conference is in session. The committee solicited us, and we hated to refuse—they will go sometime this week.

Our weather is cool enough now, Julia, we have all been shivering around for several days. I dislike to have a fire started so early as it will certainly be warm again. Grace has had fire in the grate as she is uneasy about the children. She feels the responsibility during I.M. and Libbie's absence. They are probably in New York night. Wilber went with them and of course was a delighted child. Ellen starts to school in the morning and Grace starts Tuesday. She only goes in the forenoon, but their younger sister, Maggie, is with them, so among us we have promised to look after Isaac with unusual watchfulness during that time.

I don't see why they should worry one moment about home when left in such careful hands. Grace made 80 glasses of beautiful jelly last week, plum and crabapple, to surprise Libbie. I hope they will have a nice time and all be benefited by the change.

Julia, you remember Mrs. Webster, of course. Well, she and her husband grew so impatient that they sent for a brother-in-law, an eminent physician East, so he came and examined her and said she was entirely mistaken in her situation — that a displacement had taken place which called for an operation, and said if the doctors here had not made that discovery that he would not be willing to perform it and leave her here under their car. So she closed her house and took her little girl and went to his home. We will all be anxious to hear from her.

You must write me all about Van's wedding. We never sent regrets. Wasn't that neglectful? Sheldon leaves all writing for me to do, and I really forgot it. Sheldon has gone to church with our ministers to night (sic), and Arthur and I are all alone in the house. I am writing on one knee and he has his picture book on the other, continually asking questions, so you will have to excuse all mistakes.

Tell Nellie I am going to write her next time, as glad she was pleased with her fan. Mother and Kittie returned from their trip and had a pleasant time especially Kittie who says she never did meet such stunning boys and girls.

My "Mother Hubbard" will be done tomorrow and is very pretty. I have had a siege in getting it, haven't I? I got the black and white goods and had it trimmed in black velvet. Millie thinks Libbie's new suit so homely and unbecoming which of course makes her somewhat dissatisfied.

I have Arthur's winter clothes all made now, excepting one dress. I got an en-

The dance will be held in the north gymnasium.

"The mighty Rocket team is restless tonight, 'cause we've got a big game and it's right in sight. Are we worried? No sree!!! 'Cause we're going to win it easily." This is the cheer that has led the Lincoln Northeast Rockets onward to victory in battle after battle with their opponents. The team does not plan on making tonight's game loss number one.

The LNE Rockets are away from the home field tonight. They play Hastings High School, the home of the "Tigers", at Hastings. Leading the team on to victory No. 6, will be co-captains Dennis Bergman and Mike Clinkenbeard.

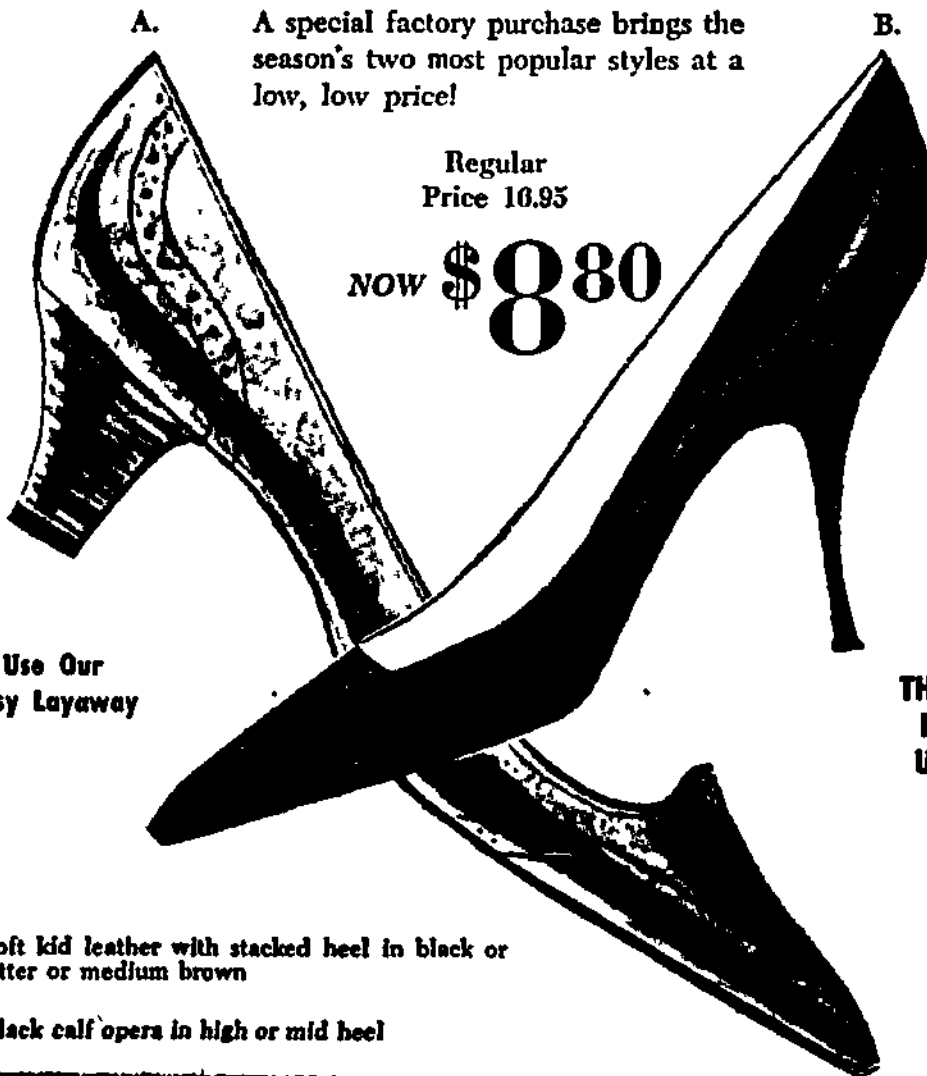

Next week is 'homecoming' for Lincoln Northeast, and the big feature is the game — the Rockets vs Fairbury High School.

Honors convocation for only the junior and senior classes, was held at Lincoln Northeast on Thursday. This assembly honored the 45 seniors and the 40 juniors who had been named to the scholastic Honor Roll, and a record was broken. At this convocation was the largest number of Honor Roll students in the two classes in the history of the school.

The guest speaker at the assembly was Nebraska's first lady, Mrs. Frank Morrison.

Plans are in the making for the Northeast Turnabout

Josephine Lowman

Firming for fall comes easy when you follow advice and exercises, like this one, by Josephine Lowman.

Reconditioning for fall calls for more than giving the hair and complexion special care and losing extra pounds. Sometimes small bulges linger on even after the scales give you the happy news. Without regular exercise, muscles may become lax.

Also, even correct weight may be less attractively distributed at middle age than in more youthful years. It takes a bit of extra effort from middle age on.

Opener Response

B. Jay Becker

QUIZ

Your partner deals and bids One Diamond, next player passes, neither side vulnerable. What would you now bid with each of the following hands?

1. ♠KQ72 ♥K974 ♦62 ♣953
2. ♠95 ♥KJ63 ♦AQ752 ♣84
3. ♠98643 ♥AK72 ♦— ♣AKQ5
4. ♠6 ♥AK93 ♦K84 ♣QJ962
5. ♠KJ7 ♥AQ8 ♦J83 ♣AQ85

1. One heart. It is better to respond a heart than a spade, even though normally the higher ranking of two touching suits is bid first. The reason for the exception in this case is that the intention is to bid only once and then retire from the auction.

The disadvantage of a spade response is that a heart fit, if it exists, may never be found. The heart response provides the opportunity of finding a fit quickly in either suit, since it leaves room for a spade bid by the opener. It would be wrong to respond in notrump, since the first aim should be to seek a major suit fit.

2. One heart. The principle of seeking a major suit fit applies here also, even though a fit in diamonds is already established. The best contract may yet prove to be three notrump, and it might well be that the heart response will enable partner to undertake that contract. At the moment, there is no assurance of game anywhere, but the combination of a heart response now and a diamond raise later could lead the way to the best contract.

3. One spade. This is a good hand opposite an opening bid and a game in some contract will surely be undertaken eventually, but where the game lies is at this point uncertain. In such cases the best thing to do is to bid the suits in natural order and hope to find a trump fit along the way. The spades are named first because they constitute the longest suit. Their quantity takes precedence over their quality.

4. Two clubs. The final contract is in doubt here also, but at least a game contract will have to be reached eventually. The plan is to bid clubs first and then hearts, thus indicating greater club length. If partner fails to raise either suit, we intend then to show diamond support and in that way identify the spade shortage. This is as good a picture of the distribution and high-card values as can be drawn.

5. Three notrump. The best way to represent this hand is to do it all in one motion by jumping to three notrump. This shows 16 or 17 high-card points, notrump distribution and strength in the unbid suits. The response of three notrumps is by no means a closing bid. It invites partner to go on with values above a minimum opening bid.

Dear Abby

Mothers Must Not Run Interference

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a mother who won't let her 12-year-old boy fight his own battles? This mother runs outside every time she hears a disagreement in which her son is involved. My son is part of the neighborhood group of about 12 boys who play together. We have taught our son to be respectful to adults, so when this mother runs out and tells the other boys to quit picking on her son, no kid is going to talk back to her and tell her it's usually her kid who starts it. I am only one of the mothers who doesn't know how to handle this. Can you help us?

ONE MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: One of you mothers who is friendly with this woman should tell her that she is hurting her son while trying to help him. Boys must learn to resolve differences among themselves. It is part of growing up. Psychiatrists' couches are bathed with the sweat of men whose mothers ran interference for them.

DEAR ABBY: Our son is marrying a girl we all liked very much until she started planning the wedding. She said she didn't want any of those old-fashioned songs, like "I Love You Truly" or "Because" played at HER wedding. She wants songs that "mean something" to her and our son. It seems they met and fell in love to a jazz song called "WHAT KIND OF A FOOL AM I?" And that, Dear Abby, is what she wants the church organist to play at our son's wedding. I told my son if they play "WHAT KIND OF FOOL AM I?" in church they will have to get married without me. Am I wrong?

GROOM'S MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think you are probably assuming that the bride plans to walk down the aisle to "WHAT KIND OF FOOL AM I?" She probably has in mind a medley of their favorite songs as a prelude to such ceremonial music as the traditional Lohengrin. P.S. If this is not the plan, see if you can't negotiate it as a compromise.

DEAR ABBY: In the apartment building where I live is a couple with a little boy. The husband is a professional man and his wife is a nice appearing woman, but she is letting that little boy slowly starve to death. He is so thin I could cry. Isn't there some way a nurse could be sent to that home to tell that mother to feed her child? I saw the husband in the hall one day and I tried to tell him that his son looked like he needed vitamins, but he didn't seem interested. There should be a law against letting a child grow so thin. He is a very active child, and I've never seen a doctor go into that apartment so I don't think the boy is sickly. Please don't think me a busybody. I just had to tell somebody. Is there anything I can do?

A NEIGHBOR

DEAR NEIGHBOR: I think it's safe to assume that the parents are as concerned about their son's health as you are. A child who appears "thin" is not necessarily slowly starving to death. Your intentions are good, but any suggestions would be considered meddling.

What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

One thing you can still get in this genuine state is genuine orange juice.

Arizona hotels in the plush Camelback area serve orange, juice squeezed right out of the oranges. When I see California orange juice it is either fresh frozen, canned or bottled.

Arizona does not have as many oranges as California. But it knows how to treat an orange. You should treat an orange like lady. Don't freeze. Squeeze.

Arizona sunshine is famous throughout the world. And putting about the shops in Scottsdale this a.m. I find that sunshine also works for the tourist trade.

"Sun-colored glass! Genuine souvenirs!" That is the sign in the souvenir shop it displays glass that is colored.

Somewhere out in the desert, a prospector flung away an empty whiskey bottle. The sun obligingly colored it. And now it is in the window—a genuine souvenir. It is just what everybody needs.

Among souvenirs, you can get "genuine rock from the Superstition Mountains."

This is excellent stuff to have around the house. Somewhere in the Superstition Mountains is the Lost Dutchman mine.

The Spanish worked this mine. But they were driven off by Indians.

Some time in the early days, a prospector known as "The Dutchman" came into town and died of the hardships he had gone through.

Under his bed they found gold ore—it was in rose quartz—so rich that people have been talking about it ever since.

The next best thing is a genuine rock from the Superstition Mountains.

The entire West is loaded with souvenirs. And the most valuable souvenirs are chips of stone off graves of famous bandits.

Tourists have chipped away three successive stones that mark the grave of Sam Bass in Round Rock, Texas.

Sam was trying to rob the bank when Texas Rangers plugged him like a ripe watermelon.

They buried him, and within a couple of years, tourists had chipped off his whole grave stone.

Tourists chipped down a life-size statue of Wild Bill.

In fact, tourists do more damage to grave markers of Western bad men than the original destroyer did to the late departed.

The most successful example of souvenir hunting that I ran into was over at old Fort Sumner in New Mexico.

Billy the Kid is buried at the old fort—not far from where Sheriff Pat Garrett shot him on the porch of Pete Maxwell's ranch house.

His first grave stone was chipped away rapidly.

The present stone is surrounded by high, cyclone-wire fencing.

Even so, tourists get over the fence and chip at it.

The stone is an excellent souvenir. For it also lists the names of "Big Foot" Tom O'Fallard and Charlie Bowdre. Both of them were killed during the Kid's first capture.

At the top of the stone, the legend says: "Pals."

300 To Attend NU Cheerleader Clinic

More than 300 Nebraska high school cheerleaders will attend the fifth annual Cheerleader Clinic Saturday at the University of Nebraska.

According to Yell King Doug Busskohl, Norfolk, the university yell squad, pom pon girls and gymnasts will be in charge of the clinic which will be held in the Coliseum.

In addition to teaching techniques of cheerleading, University yells, and one pom pon routine, the clinic will emphasize the responsibilities yell squads have to their schools.

After a tour of the campus and a noon banquet at the Nebraska Union, members of the group will attend the Air Force Academy - Nebraska football game.

Fire Drills Are Mandatory

An attorney general's opinion released Thursday said monthly fire drills are mandatory in all Nebraska schools.

It also said failure to comply with the regulation is grounds for civil liability and possible criminal prosecution.

The opinion was requested by State Fire Marshal Joseph Divis after one of his assistant's reported some schools last year were not conducting drills.

"In the opinion of this office," the opinion said, "there can be no question but that it is the mandatory duty of the administrators of all public and parochial schools to conduct fire drills in the manner prescribed by the state fire marshal."

The opinion was written by Asst. Atty. Gen. C. C. Sheldon and approved by Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer.

Wild Saturday Ahead

Nebraska fans who have been waiting to see an aerial display are likely to see a double feature Saturday when the Air Force Academy brings its Falcon and its Terry Isaacson to NU's Memorial Stadium.

If Isaacson lives up to his advance billing, the Huskers may be forced to pass to keep up with the rising score. Isaacson's success quite likely holds the key to what kind of game the sellout crowd will see Saturday. If Isaacson is hot, the Huskers will have to come up with a sounder offensive performance than they have shown thus far. If the Huskers can stop Isaacson, it could be a long day for the Falcon mascot.

The Air Force would appear to provide the last serious threat to an unbeaten NU record going into the Missouri game Nov. 2 at Columbia.

Coach Bob Devaney's club has played well enough to win so far even if they haven't been spectacular and we'll string along with them again. Call it: NEBRASKA 27, Air Force 14.

Other Big Eight Clashes

Oklahoma 17, Texas 14 ... All eyes are on this one. Bud Wilkinson has a barn-burner at OU regardless of his cautious attitude. Big Eight gains prestige here.

Kansas 24, Iowa State 14 ... Cyclones looked good against Nebraska last week. But then, they always do. Iowa State may have used all its marbles against the Huskers and could get beat worse.

Missouri 31, Kansas State 0 ... It looks like another winless year in Big Eight competition for Doug Weaver. Oklahoma State 14, Colorado 6 ... Colorado's Eddie Crowder got his first win as a head coach last week and OSU's Phil Cutchin should pick up his in this one.

METS, COLTS DRAFT THREE

Haas, Raymond Fisher Chosen ... FOR $30,000 EACH

Cincinnati (AP) — The New York Mets grabbed 20-year-old infielder Billy Haas from Los Angeles and pitcher Jack Fisher from San Francisco and the Houston Colts took relief pitcher Claude Raymond from Milwaukee Thursday at $30,000 each in the National League's gesture to help the newest clubs.

Although each of the eight other teams in the league had submitted lists of four "bargains", the lowly Mets and Colts obviously did not find much comfort in the list of 33. They could have taken a total of eight but they settled for only three.

George Weiss, president of the 10th place Mets, had first pick in the three-way telephone sale that linked New York and Houston with the office of league president Warren Giles. Weiss took Haas, a Dodger bonus infielder who had counted on the Los Angeles club's player list all season as a "first-year man" although he played in Albuquerque and Santa Barbara.

After a phenomenal year at Reno in 1962 when he hit .368, 33 homers and 144 runs batted in, Haas batted .302 at Albuquerque and .328 at Santa Barbara the past season. For some reason he was not placed on the World Series list and the Dodgers had only 24 eligibles. As it turned out, this was 11 more than they needed.

Right Handers

Fisher is a 24-year-old right-hander who spent his entire career with Baltimore until traded to the Giants last December with Billy Hoof and Jim Coker for Mike McCormick, Stu Miller and John Orsino. Fisher was supposed to be a starter with the Giants but after 10 starts he faded to the bullpen. He wound up with a 6-10 record and only two complete games in 12 starts. One of the complete games was against the Mets.

In Houston, Paul Richards, general manager of the Colts, said "I wish we had won the right for first choice." Obviously he had hoped to grab Haas.

Richards settled for Raymond, a 26-year-old relief pitcher who had a 4-6 record and a 5.43 earned run record in 45 games with the Braves.

Indication

"As we said earlier this was just an indication that the other clubs are trying to help," said Weiss in New York. "They didn't shut the door. Unfortunately some of the players on the list were not a considerable improvement over what we had."

When the Mets and Colts were set up after the 1961 Series, they were permitted to select a total of 45 players from the others at prices ranging from $50,000 to $125,000.

Falcon Artistry

Adding to the colorful festivities of Band Day Saturday will be the appearance of Mach I, the official falcon mascot of the Air Force Academy. Mach I will perform his aerial stunts for the anticipated sellout crowd of 38,000.

The falcon's appearance will share the spotlight with 4,000 high school bandmen from all points of the state who will perform as a unit at halftime.

NY's Mantle To Undergo Operation

New York (AP)—Mickey Mantle definitely will have an operation on his left knee within two weeks in a New York hospital.

The New York Yankees announced Mantle's imminent operation Thursday after Manager Ralph Houk had conferred with co-owner Dan Topping and General Manager Roy Hamer. Houk contacted Mantle on a golf course in Dallas where he was playing with Ben Hogan.

Dr. Sidney Gaynor, club physician, will operate on Mantle for the removal of an outside cartilage of the left knee which was torn when he ran into a fence in Baltimore, June 5. He also suffered a broken bone in his left foot. Bob Fishel, Yankee public relations chief, said Mantle will come to New York in a week or 10 days after he has cleaned up some personal business and will undergo the operation at Lenox Hill Hospital.

Mantle underwent an operation for removal of the inside cartilage of his right knee after the 1951 World Series.

The Yankee slugger who will be 32 on Oct. 20, played only 65 games this season. He hit .314 with 15 homers and 35 runs batted in. It was the first time he had failed to play at least 100 games.

The Yanks also announced the outright release of coach Dale Long in order to permit the veteran to find a job elsewhere. Long was dropped as a player July 29 and re-signed as a coach the following day.

Rousing AF Plea Goes For Naught

... CADETS WON'T VISIT LINCOLN

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

A determined band of Air Force cadets, who had their hearts set on seeing the Nebraska-Air Force game Saturday, were turned back Thursday because of the anticipated packed house at NU's Memorial Stadium.

The spontaneous movement that was designed to lead to Lincoln erupted Wednesday night at the Air Force Academy when nearly 1,800 cadets staged a rally at the home of Brig. Gen. Robert W. Strong, Jr., commandant of cadets.

Gen. Strong's home is located seven miles from the cadets' housing units. But this didn't stop the eager men of the Air Force Academy, who had decided they wanted to see their Falcons go against the Cornhuskers.

"They came on foot, in cars and anyway they could get here," Gen. Strong told The Star Thursday night.

"You know how football affects spirits. Well this was one of the most spirited rallies I have ever seen," noted the commandant of cadets.

"The spirit is very high here," Gen. Strong said from his Air Force Academy office. "And we know it will be a tough game. These cadets decided that they should be in Lincoln to lend vocal support for their football team."

Gen. Strong explained that Academy officials had decided after the rally Wednesday night to allow this mob of cadets to attend the game at their own expense and plus were made to charter buses to bring the 1500-1800 cadets to Lincoln.

"Gen. Warren (Academy Superintendent Maj. Gen. Robert H. Warren) called Chancellor Hardin at Nebraska Thursday morning and was told that there was no place to put the cadets in the Stadium," Gen. Strong said.

"But this didn't stop the cadets," he continued. "They still wanted to come and said they would be happy to just stand outside the stadium and listen to the game on radio. They just wanted to be there to cheer."

"But we decided that it would cause an embarrassment to Nebraska officials if we brought that many cadets without any advance warning or planning, so they won't be there."

But Gen. Strong noted that a few cadets would be on hand.

"There will probably be about 100 there who had gotten tickets earlier and who have an authorized weekend free," he said. "You may not recognize them because they won't have to be in uniform. However, if they want to, they can wear the uniform."

The only trip that is planned to include the cadets in mass this year will be the contest with Army in Chicago, Nov. 2, Gen. Strong noted.

Nebraska's Chancellor Clifford Hardin said Thursday night he was sorry that satisfactory arrangements could not be made for the cadets to attend the game either from inside or outside the stadium.

The NU athletic ticket office announced more than a week ago that all seats in the stadium and in the bleachers were sold out.

Starting Right Half Remains Undecided

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Nebraska's football coaches Thursday continued to wrestle with the decision on whether to start Bob Hohn or Kent McCloughan at right halfback Saturday against the Air Force Academy.

"We probably won't make the decision until Saturday morning," Devaney said. "We are having trouble making the decision, but regardless of who starts, both Hohn and McCloughan will see plenty of action Saturday."

Making the decision a tough one for the coaching staff is the fact that Hohn, who had earned the starting nod last week, was hurt early in the Iowa State game and did not play much while McCloughan gave his best performance of the fall.

"It wasn't Bob's fault that he got hurt," Devaney points out. "And at the same time McCloughan played well enough to earn the starting spot."

While still debating the McCloughan-Hohn decision, the Husker coach indicated that sophomore Tony Jeter had won the starting right end spot over senior Dick Callahan.

Callahan is the Huskers leading pass receiver with four, but his blocking in the Iowa State game was disappointing to the coaches. Callahan and Jeter have been sharing the right end burdens on the No. 1 unit during this week's drills.

Devaney shortened Thursday's workout to one hour, one of the shortest of the fall,

—WESLEYAN HOST TO POWERFUL NORTHERN TONIGHT— Omaha U Begins Defense Of CIC Title Saturday

By DON SUMMERSIDE
Star Sports Writer

Omaha University opens defense of its Central Intercollegiate Conference football title this weekend with the hope that loop competition will be a little more friendly.

Coach Al Caniglia's Indians were strong favorites to gain a repeat title this season but have staggered to a 1-2 record against non-conference opposition. Chances for a first-place finish still appear good however, as early season performances by the other four schools—Pittsburg, Ft. Hays, Washburn and Emporia State—have failed to uncover any likely powerhouses.

Ft. Hays is at home to Omaha Saturday and will bring an 0-2-1 mark into the contest. The Tigers tied Northwest Missouri in their opener, 7-7, then followed with a 42-0 humbling at Colorado Western and a 26-14 defeat at the hands of Kearney.

The Indians won't be taking the game lightly however. Ft. Hays was responsible for the lone blemish on Omaha's CIC record in 1962, a 20-20 tie. Washburn and Emporia meet in the other conference game Saturday while Pittsburg tunes up for the CIC one more week by hosting Southern Colorado State.

Action in the Nebraska College and Tri-State conferences has settled down to a struggle of trying to keep up with the leader.

Kearney continues to rest easily atop the NCC ladder with every other team but Hastings already owning one conference loss.

Hastings has last week's 12-12 tie with Peru marring its record and is faced with the prospect of meeting the Antelopes at Kearney this weekend. Other Saturday action finds one-time losers Peru and Doane fighting to escape title elimination at Peru and Wayne making the long trip west to Chadron.

In the Tri-State Conference, the frontrunner's position also became more secure after last week's action.

Title hopefuls Midland and Westmar battled to a 14-14 stand-off while Concordia breezed to its fourth straight victory, 27-0 over Northwestern.

The Bulldogs from Seward have allowed a total of just nine points in their first four contests and should have clear Tri-State sailing until the Nov. 2 meeting with Midland. Concordia hosts Yankton Saturday and the South Dakotas are winless so far in four attempts.

A grim weekend may be in store for Nebraska Wesleyan fans.

After suffering their first loss of the season last Friday at the hands of Northwest Missouri, the Plainsmen must face what should be a stronger foe tonight and do it without the services of their leading ground gainer.

Undeclared Northern State of South Dakota is the opponent. Prior to last week's 48-0 romp past Dakota Wesleyan, the Wolves were rated 7th nationally among NAIA colleges.

Sophomore fullback Dave Newlon is the costly casualty. The fleet 200-pounder from Tabor, Iowa suffered cracked ribs in the NW Missouri game and is out for an indefinite period.

The weekend slate:

Northern, S.D. at WESLEYAN (Friday)
Doane at Peru
Hastings at Kearney
Wayne at Chadron
Yankton at Concordia
Northwestern at Doane
Midland at Sioux Falls

—SHOES, HELMETS SUFFER—

Bob Brown's Actions Keep Equipment Industry Going

Nebraska's All-America guard candidate Bob Brown may be the best thing that's happened to the athletic equipment industry since Oklahoma's Jim Krisher was depleting the shoulder pad stockpiles.

As a 6-4, 269-pound linebacker Brown has had to pound after a lot of backs during the Cornhuskers' first three victories. "I'm holding up a lot better than my shoes," Big Bob grinned after the 21-7 victory over Iowa State, played in 93-degree heat — which cost Brown 13 pounds, by the way.

Brown had launched his third pair of 14½-E brogans against the Cyclones, and he almost had to go barefooted.

"When you're as big as Brown and run as hard — on flat-feet, too — something has to give," laughed Floyd Bottorff, a veteran of 34 years as NU equipment manager. "In Bob's case it's been his shoes. We had to rush in a special order to Chicago and the shoes arrived just before the game. They had to keep a man on overtime to turn 'em out."

Nebraska offensive line coach George Kelly joined the discussion and interjected, "They promised the shoes would be here for the game — but the man said he wouldn't guarantee the kangaroo would be dead."

Bottorff shook his head and mused, "I've never seen anything like it — Brown wears 'em three days and they go flat and out of shape. But from now on we'll have enough extra shoes to keep him running."

Shoes aren't the only equipment Brown has been battering as the Huskers have rolled past South Dakota State, Minnesota and Iowa State.

When the Cornhuskers take the field against Air Force Saturday, Big Bob will be wearing his third helmet of the season. Two editions of his special-built helmet have suffered cave-ins during his pulling guard blocks and crunching tackles.

"As near as I can tell, Brown has gone through about $70 worth of shoes and $57 worth of helmets," Bottorff reported.

All of which prompted Coach Bob Devaney to remark: "The way that big guy has been playing, he's worth every penny of it!"

At any rate the fact that a lineman leads the city teams in scoring emphasizes the problems that the coaches have had in generating a scoring punch.

QUINN COLLAPSES AT NEWS MEETING

Philadelphia (AP) — John Quinn, 55, general manager of baseball's Philadelphia Phillies collapsed at a news luncheon Thursday and his condition was so serious for a while a Roman Catholic priest administered extreme unction.

After Quinn was rushed to a hospital, however, he regained consciousness and sat up. Bob Carpenter, the National League club's owner, said Quinn felt better and wanted to leave the hospital. But he was detained overnight. Spokesmen at Jefferson Hospital said Quinn's ailment was not serious, but did not say what afflicted him.

WHITEY FORD

UPI Names Ford Top AL Hurler

New York (UPI) — Whitey Ford, a symbol of New York Yankee success for more than a decade, Thursday was named the American League's pitcher of the year by United Press International.

The 34-year-old left-hander was chosen over three other strong contenders — Dick Radatz of the Boston Red Sox, Camilo Pascual of the Minnesota Twins and Gary Peters of the Chicago White Sox — by a committee of 24 baseball writers representing every city in the major leagues.

A 24-game winner in 1963 and winner of 199 games in 12 seasons with the Yankees, Ford was the choice of 18 of the 24 experts. Radatz, Pascual and Peters each received two votes to round out the balloting.

Race Suspension On Foyt Dropped

Indianapolis (AP) — A temporary suspension against race driver A. J. Foyt was lifted Thursday as U.S. Auto Club officials tried to unravel conflicting reports on a post-race incident at Williams Grove, Pa., last Saturday.

The action by Henry Banks' USAC director of competition, will allow Foyt to compete Sunday in the Grand Prix at Riverside, Cal. Tommy Nicholson, USAC Eastern Zone supervisor, filed the charge that Foyt slugged driver Johnny White in White's pit after a sprint car race at Williams Grove. Foyt, however, denied that, saying he merely went to White's pit to complain about instances in which he said White cut in on him on corners.

Los Angeles (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams placed offensive back Alvin Hall on waivers Thursday and added three men to their active list in preparation for Sunday's football game against the Chicago Bears.

The Rams placed on the active list Stan Fanning, offensive and defensive tackle; Nat Whitmyer, defensive back; and John Griffin, also a defensive back.

'Cactus Jack' Enjoying Small-Time Grid Wars

Santa Barbara, Calif. (AP) — There was undisputed dismay in some places when Jack Curtice was fired as head coach at Stanford and stepped out of big time college football to take over at the University of California at Santa Barbara this year.

The Santa Barbara branch of UC has excellent academic standards, 5,850 students, a beautiful campus in a beautiful city and a football team which won two games in each of the past three years.

The post just didn't seem to fit "Cactus Jack" Curtice, a master of the pass, in 1961 president of the American Football Coaches Association and a merry soul blessed with high humor in a profession often dominated by the dour. Waste no tears for genial

DANA HARRIS FALL TO NWU

Nebraska Wesleyan's cross-country team, undefeated in dual competition this year, took its third straight dual win Thursday with a 15-50 victory over Dana.

The Wesleyan runners monopolized the first seven position places over the three mile course at Thunder Ridge golf course with Larry Ribble crossing the finish line first with time of 16:41.

The results: 1. Larry Ribble, (NWU); 2. Mel Carlson, (NWU); 3. Larry Hendrickson, (NWU); 4. Ed Williams, (NWU); 5. Terry Roberts, (NWU).

Cardinals To Retain Entire Coaching Staff

St. Louis (AP) — The St. Louis baseball Cardinals will retain their entire 1963 coaching staff, general manager Big Devine said Thursday.

Devine said the quartet of Howard Pollet, Vern Benson, Red Schoendienst and Joe Schultz will assist manager Johnny Keane in 1964. Keane is The Associated Press 1963 manager of the year.

Great Place

"This is a great place and the kids are wonderful" Curtice said Thursday.

"I hear you have a big winning streak going," an admirer said to him.

"That's right," replied Jack, adding with a hearty laugh, "three straight."

Two straight was the best Stanford ever gave him.

The big victory in the present string was 9-7 over Whitier, a perennial power among the smaller four-year California colleges and a team which doesn't lose very often.

Curtice has a squad of about 42, none of whom weighs over 200 pounds and few even close.

"But they are tremendous to work with. My gang isn't very big but they're quick," he continued.

The Gauchos throw the ball perhaps 50 per cent of the time, which means they are a Curtice-certified-Curtice-certified team.

Phil Patton, Santa Barbara News-Press sports editor, said privately, and not within Jack's hearing:

"Curtice has a typical pro T-style offense. I don't think the kids on the other teams know how to cope with it—and I'm not sure all the coaches can, either."

Still Chairman
Curtice is still chairman of the national rules committee. He said his team has played under both the free and the limited substitution rules this season.

"I couldn't see there was much difference. But the limited substitution rule does mean a boy must know how to play both offense and defense," he said.

"I've always felt a boy should play a 'whole' game of football, not a 'half-game.'"

Louise Suggs Leads PGA

Las Vegas, Nev. (AP) — Veteran Louise Suggs of DelRay Beach, Fla., who has played in only two other tournaments this year, carded a 34-36-70 at the Stardust Golf Club Thursday to take a two-stroke lead after one round of play in the 1963 Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship.

Miss Suggs, 40, came out of retirement to play in the $15,000 event, the biggest tournament in the LPGA tour. She was the only one to better par in the opening round. Par is 35-36-71.

Mickey Wright of Dallas, winner of 12 tournaments so far this year, fired a 38-36-72 for second place.

Four golfers, including defending champion Judy Kimball of Sioux City, Iowa, and women's National Open winner Mary Mills of Ocean Springs, Miss., had 73s.

First round leaders:

FLORIDA A&M RATED FIRST

New York (UPI)—Florida A. & M.'s Rattlers, held to one of their weakest strikes in 20 straight regular season wins, were named the top small college football team in the country for the second consecutive week by the United Press International board of coaches.

With Bob Hayes pacing the Rattlers to a 14-0 win over Benedict, Florida A. & M. amassed five first-place votes and 241 points from the 35-man board of coaches.

Northern Illinois moved past Delaware into second place on the strength of quarterback George Bork's passing and accumulated 233 points that included six first place votes. Bork passed for all three Northern Illinois touchdowns in an 18-7 triumph over Omaha.

The Top 10 remained intact, but there were quite a few

Tingelhoff Hurt; May Miss GB Tilt

Minneapolis St. Paul (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings lost veteran flanker Leon Clarke Thursday for about 10 days due to a cartilage separation in his ribs.
Clarke was injured late in the 56-14 loss to St. Louis last Sunday after he caught a pass and was hit hard. He will not suit up for Sunday's NFL game with the Green Bay Packers here.
Listed as doubtful for full duty is center Mick Tingelhoff, former University of Nebraska griddier, who sprained an ankle against the Cardinals. If Tingelhoff cannot play, Bob Denton will go at center.

DICK STUART

Stuart Named AL Comeback Star By AP

New York (AP)—Dick Stuart, the long ball-hitting first baseman who took advantage of Boston's short left field fence the past season after a disastrous year with Pittsburgh, was named the American League's comeback player-of-the-year Thursday.
The husky right-handed batter received 36 votes of the 64 cast by baseball writers in the annual Associated Press poll. Frank Lary, Detroit pitcher, was second with six votes. Steve Barber, Baltimore pitcher, third baseman Frank Malzone of Boston and outfielder Al Kaline of Detroit were named on three ballots.
Stuart moved to Boston in an inter-league trade last winter after hitting only .228 with 16 homers and 64 runs batted in for the Pirates. This past season, he led the American League in runs batted in with 118, was the runner-up to Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew in home runs with 42 and batted .261.

British 'Babies' Open Ryder Cup Competition

Atlanta (AP) — The British sprang a surprise and named the two "babies" of their team — Brian Huggett and George Will — to face Arnold Palmer and Johnny Pott in the opening foursome match Friday in the 15th Ryder Cup golf series.
Huggett, a stocky, 5-foot-6 Welshman, and Will, a Scotsman, each is 26. Neither has ever played in a Ryder Cup match before.
John Fallon, the wily, gray-haired Scotsman who leads the invading professionals from overseas, acknowledged Thursday that he had a suspicion that Palmer would nominate himself in the first match and his No. 1 pairing was contrived.
"This is not concession of a point at all," Fallon said. "I sincerely think the babies have a good chance of winning. They had a 67 in practice. They will be loose — with all to win and nothing to lose."
Palmer, the playing U.S. captain, mixed seasoning with inexperience in his lineup for the first four of eight matches scheduled on opening day. In foursome play, the two team members hit alternate shots.
7 a.m. — Arnold Palmer and Johnny Pott, U.S., vs. Brian Huggett and George Will, Britain.

Washington (P) — Detroit's police commissioner traced the top hierarchy of "Mafia" crime in the Motor City Thursday and said it raked in $150 million a year at a conservative estimate.

Its five top "dons" live in the lush suburbs of Grosse Pointe in luxurious houses, said Commissioner George C. Edwards. Four of the five were born in Sicily, and they are locked together by ancestry and intermarriage, Edwards said.

The commissioner took over the spotlight of the Senate Investigations Subcommittee's hearings from Joseph Valachi, the mobster nicknamed canary who recounted in his gravelly voice his three decades in crime in five previous sessions before the committee.

Interest Slackens
Valachi's departure signaled a marked slackening of public interest in the hearings. Nobody waited in the hall to get in Thursday.

Unlike Valachi, Edwards called the crime organization the Mafia. Valachi had told the senators his New York co-criminals never used that term but called it "Cosa nostra," meaning "our thing."

Edwards said Valachi's testimony corroborated in many ways what the Detroit police force has been able to find out from its own surveillance, without benefit of an inside informant.

"I believe in what you're doing here," he told the senators, "and I'm not saying this to cotton up to a Senate committee. There have been some Nevertheless, Edwards insisted that Detroit is the cleanest, least crime-ridden of the big cities.

The commissioner unveiled a huge chart of the Mafia organization in Detroit. At the top were five "dons"—Joseph Zerilli, Peter Licavola, John Priziola, Angelo Meli, William Tucco. Of these, police believe Zerilli is "the big man."

Sen. Karl Mundt, R-S.D., said he felt the difficulty of deporting such hoodlums is "the real place where we break down in law enforcement in this society." He said crooks are able to "thumb their nose at the United States and say 'you can't deport us.'"

Edwards agreed it is hard to understand why deportation cases can be so long delayed. He said of the top 26 criminals on his organization chart, 14 were foreign born.

"If you'd take 14 out of our top 26 out of our hair it would help a lot," he told Mundt.

Russians Delay 2 U.S. Convoys

Berlin (AP) — The Russians held up two U.S. military convoys for some 15 hours Thursday on the highway connecting West Berlin and West Germany, then allowed them to move.

The incident was the most serious in the 100-mile life line to Communist-surrounded West Berlin since 1958.

U.S. Army officials in Berlin said the trouble arose over a "procedural question."

Informants said the Soviets insisted that the troops aboard the convoys dismount from their vehicles so that Soviet guards could count them. The American officers in charge refused.

American authorities protested the holdup to the Soviet commander in East Germany and the convoys were finally allowed to move without the troops getting out of their vehicles.

The delay began at 1:59 a.m. (CST) Thursday at the Marienborn checkpoint just inside East Germany on the western end of the superhighway. A convoy of 18 vehicles carrying 61 men going to Berlin was stopped by the Soviets and not allowed to proceed.

At about the same time, another convoy of 25 vehicles and 75 men coming from Berlin pulled up to the checkpoint on its way out of Communist East Germany.

It also was stopped by the Russians.

When unusually large numbers of troops are being carried in convoys, they sometimes dismount to be counted by the Russians.

However, the Western Allies feel that dismounting for border checks is a "courtesy" and not a procedure that must be followed at all times.

Have Right

With proper travel orders all military vehicles have the right to pass through the Soviet zone without any special checks by Soviet guards, the Western Allies insist.

"Agreement was ultimately reached with the Soviets to process the convoys in accordance with established procedures," an Army spokesman said.

A third convoy carrying 117 men in 27 vehicles was held up for about four hours but then proceeded to West Germany since it was not directly involved in the dispute.

AWARDS GIVEN AT 'DINING IN'

Washington (AP) — U.S. officials busily paved the way Thursday for American wheat dealers to sell to Russia and Soviet satellite nations. And there was talk of Iron Curtain buyers asking about purchasing other farm products from this country.

That the Russians want the U.S. wheat, which President Kennedy announced Wednesday they may buy, was confirmed by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko. Embarking on a round of talks, the Soviet official told newsmen:

"We're going to buy it. The United States is going to sell."

Gromyko declined to comment further on the agreement.

Announced in Moscow

The Russian people were told of the deal quickly by their own government. Moscow radio Thursday morning broadcast Kennedy's decision and said he had "emphasized the interest of the United States in the sale."

With U.S. wheat dealers apparently working quietly to prepare for the transaction, there came a demand from shipping unions that Kennedy nail down specifically a policy that U.S. ships carry most of the grain.

Peter M. McGavin, executive secretary-treasurer of the AFL-CIO Maritime Trade Department, noted that the President had said the wheat would be carried in available American ships, supplemented by other ships as required.

Urges 50% At Least

McGavin urged that definite provision be made for at least 50% of the wheat to be shipped in U.S. vessels with an aim of 100%.

"Unless this policy is fixed we anticipate that the Soviet Union will seek to reduce costs by arranging the transport... in foreign flag ships that can offer cut rates," McGavin said.

At a news conference, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges said if U.S. vessels are unable to meet the delivery deadline of April 30, 1964, the determination would be made by private traders who have their own shipping contracts.

Vessels Available

The commerce secretary added he knows of at least a score of U.S. vessels available immediately.

Hodges was asked what assurances there are that the wheat would not help Red China or Cuba.

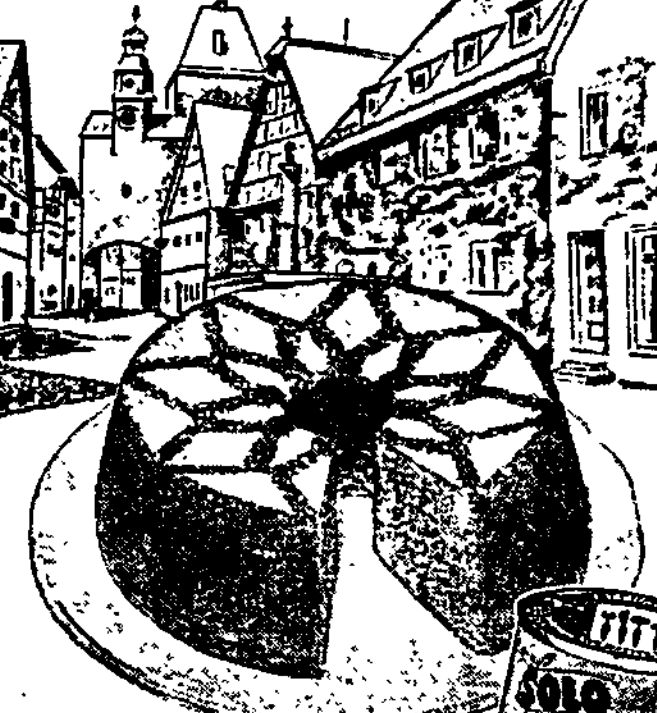

He said it emphatically is part of the U.S. condition that none of the wheat be sent to mainland China.

It is against U.S. policy to send anything to either Cuba or Communist China, Hodges said.

Gas And Prods Again Halt Plaquemine Demonstrations

Plaquemine, La. (AP) — Tear gas broke up a demonstration outside a boycotted Negro high school Thursday as teen-agers stubbornly pressed their civil rights uprising.

It was the third day this week that officers heaved gas grenades and used electric cattle prods to disperse Negro youngsters.

Two Negro men were arrested, both at Iberville Parish (county) High. They were booked as James H. Payne, 28, of Birmingham and Charles Oubre of Plaquemine.

Cafe Target

Earlier, Police Chief Dennis Songy, 60, broke up a sit-in at a downtown restaurant staged by nine teen-agers who entered, took seats in booths and waited tensely for police to arrive.

They panicked and bolted for the door when Songy, carrying a cattle prod, entered and shouted: "all right, let's get out."

When an officer seized a Negro girl at the door, Songy cried, "hold her," and touched her with the cattle prod several times before she was freed. The youths were pursued down the street for about a block.

Daniel Kimbell of state district court signed a preliminary injunction Thursday morning forbidding CORE to sponsor, encourage or finance any demonstrations which violate local or state laws.

The teen-agers spokesman, Konny Johnson, 16, said their "Committee on Freedom" has no connection whatever with CORE. Whether the injunction can be interpreted as including the youngsters was uncertain.

Serve All

Sheriff C. A. Griffon said he was going to serve all Iberville high pupils over 17, and their parents, with copies of the injunction.

A "juvenile delinquency" crackdown on leaders of the teen-age demonstrators also was brewing.

Youths may be placed on probation with parents responsible for making them attend school and obey laws, officials said.

Under local or state laws, mass marches could be considered illegal because they obstruct streets or sidewalks and sit-ins could be trespassing. Pickets may be charged with obstructing doorways by passing in front of them. Late loud rallies might disturb sleep.

A state spokesman said the injunction does not forbid any basic freedom, such as freedom of assembly or speech.

An appeal was expected.

Mayor Tells New Race Unit Many Won't Admit Problem

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Mayor Dean Petersen Thursday told his reactivated Council on Human Relations that one problem is getting Lincoln citizens to recognize that a human relations problem exists.

"Many people refuse to recognize Lincoln has a problem," he told the group during its organizational meeting in the mayor's office.

"They think it exists only in Louisiana or Mississippi, but we have a problem here so long as one person or family can't get a job or find a home because of prejudice."

Urging a personal rather than committee approach to human relations problems, the mayor suggested work areas should include promotion of equal employment opportunities, housing opportunities based upon economic ability, and the dispelling of prejudices and fears in human relations.

Mayor Petersen said the seven-member council was kept to a workable size, but was free to enlist the help of other persons or groups in its work.

Chairman Carroll Thompson said a task force would be formed to inventory "employment skills in the minority groups and job opportunities for such persons." The council gave unanimous consent to the plan.

Opportunities Exist

While employment prejudice exists in the city, a member pointed out, some job opportunities for Negroes and others are missed because of lack of reliable information on their skills.

A second inventory will be made on the housing needs for minority groups together with ability to finance such housing.

The group also agreed to review the 1961 study by the old council and re-examine the 11 recommendations made.

The group generally agreed that lack of employment opportunities is the most pressing problem. It was summed up by one member, who said, "If you don't have a job, you can't afford housing."

Policy Statement

The group also agreed to draft a policy statement on the council's purposes and function for consideration at its next meeting, set for Nov. 18.

Council members are Kenneth Lewis, Joe Hampton, Julian H. Hopkins, Fred Wells, Mrs. Lois Weaver, Percy Logan and Thompson.

Budget Unit OKs Fiscal Analyst's Work Schedule

The Legislature's Budget Committee Thursday adopted a work schedule for its fiscal analyst to follow in developing the interim budget report for the next session of the Unicameral.

Committee Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings said details of the work schedule will be disclosed when the committee's report is delivered to the Legislative Council next fall.

He said the committee will meet again during the special session of the Legislature to discuss planned programs for the approved personnel study for state agencies.

'Intelligent' Nurse Care Emphasized

Sister Charles Marie, dean of the school of nursing of the Catholic University of America, Washington, D.C., told 250 members attending the Nebraska State League for Nursing Convention Thursday that "nursing is a social institution with its origins in the needs of people."

"The goal or ideal of nursing is to give a patient tender, loving care," according to the sister, but she said she would change the word "tender" to a more applicable word—"intelligent."

Mrs. Neva M. Stevenson, director of the department of practical nursing programs of the NLN, said NLN membership includes nurses, other health and welfare agencies, and individuals interested in nursing and patient care. "Nursing is everybody's business," she said.

300 in Nebraska
The NLN has about 23,000 individual members and 12,000 agency members nationally, and about 300 individual members in Nebraska.

Sister Charles Marie said she is "concerned about keeping up the education of nurses to enable them to keep up with the other fields of medicine. Nursing is behind medicine in scientific advancement by 38 years."

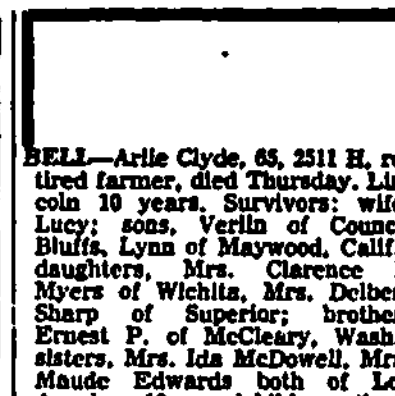

The sister said there is a "very serious shortage of nurses now, and dollars alone will not help the situation. Nurses in some areas are paid the same salary as a teacher, even though nursing is an around-the-clock service."

Recreation Road Priorities Not Yet Set Up—Hossack

State Engineer John Hossack said Thursday his State Department of Roads has not yet set up any rules for determining priorities for the expenditure of recreation road money.

Sen. J. W. Burbach of Crofton said earlier he will fight for a top priority for the construction of a road along the Nebraska side of Lewis and Clark Lake in his legislative district.

Hossack said the rules for determining priorities will be established in accordance with 1963 legislation and said he assumes Gov. Frank Morrison will designate the State Game Commission as the agency to assist the Highway Department in formulating the priority rules.

G. M. E. Commission Director Mel Steen said he has seen nothing of late to change his mind that Lewis and Clark Lake is the area with the most pressing need for access roads.

its all-day sessions in Lincoln Thursday.

Drawing serious attention were methods for implementing a plan to allow renewal of teaching certificates on the basis of three years of successful teaching experience.

R. L. Fredstrom, committee chairman, told the group that details had not yet been worked out, but that the plan would prove an incentive to well-prepared persons to continue in teaching.

Another proposed change in certification — institution of a provisional certificate for non-degree teachers to fill in special subject areas during "emergency shortage" periods — drew fire from the group of educators.

Fredstrom noted that special certification in certain instances might attract "some very good people into a teaching career" who might otherwise have to drop out of the educational picture.

The Council approved the applications of three state groups for membership. They are: the state unit of the National Association for Student Teaching; Nebraska Federation of the Council for Exceptional Children (special education), and the Nebraska Association of classroom Teachers.
